

LORD KITCHENER AND STAFF LOST WITH BRITISH CRUISER

ISLAND EMPIRE LOSES ITS STRONGEST MILITARY LEADER AND MAN

CRUISER SUNK OFF THE ORKNEY ISLANDS NO SURVIVORS FOUND

Whether a Submarine or a Mine Was the Cause is Not Known—Four Boats Seen to Leave the Ship, but Heavy Seas Were Running and None Reached the Shore—Kitchener Was Going to Russia.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 6.—The British cruiser Hampshire, on which Lord Kitchener and his staff were on their way to Russia, has been sunk off the Scottish coast by a mine or a German submarine.

Search was made for survivors but none was found.

Official announcement of the destruction of the Hampshire was made by the British Admiralty.

The following report was made:

"The Admiralty reports with deep regret that the ship Hampshire with Lord Kitchener and his staff on board was sunk last night about 8 o'clock off the Orkney Islands either by a mine or a torpedo.

"Four boats were seen by observers on the shore to leave the ship.

"Heavy seas were running, but patrol vessels and destroyers at once proceeded to the scene.

"At the same time a party was sent along the shores to search for bodies. Only a capsized boat had been found up to the time of the issuance of this report.

"The whole shore has been searched from the seaward but it is greatly feared that there is little hope for any survivors. No report has yet been received from the search party on shore. The Hampshire was proceeding to Russia."

Lord Kitchener stood next to Lord Roberts as the most admired military leader in the British Empire.

He had been secretary of state for war in the British government since August 5, 1914, the day after that on which declarations of war were exchanged between England and Germany.

A Staggering Blow.

News of the destruction of the Hampshire and the probable death of Lord Kitchener and all the members of his staff came as one of the most staggering blows received in England since the war began.

A Fighting Irishman.

Lord Kitchener was 64 years old, having been born at Ballylongford, in County Kerry, Ireland, on June 24, 1850.

Despite his years Lord Kitchener was in the prime of his vigor and was a tower of strength in the grand war councils that were held in Paris.

It was stated that Lord Kitchener's trip to Petrograd was a "special mission." It is believed to have related to the Russian offensive on the east front as an offset to the pressure being exerted by the Teutons against the Italians and against the French at Verdun.

Lloyd-George May be Successor.

England was shocked too deeply to give much thought to the question of a successor, but there were quiet reports that David Lloyd-George, the present minister of munitions, might occupy the war portfolio.

Reported by Jellicoe.

The report to the admiralty of the loss of the Hampshire was made by Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, commander of the British grand fleet.

The Hampshire was a vessel of 10,850 tons and had been in commission for about fifteen years.

Kitchener's Activities.

Lord Kitchener has been one of the most conspicuous figures in the war. It was he who, in November, 1915, went to the near east and inspected conditions at the Dardanelles. This trip led to the withdrawal of the British expedition from Gallipoli Peninsula.

The war secretary left London on November 5, 1915. He visited Gallipoli and Salonika where he conferred with the British and French generals in charge. On November 20 Lord Kitchener went to Athens, where he conferred with King Constantine of Greece, for at that time the situation in the Balkans was looking very black for the allies and it was feared Greece might side with the Central Powers.

KITCHENER'S BUSY LIFE.

Horatio Herbert Kitchener, as he was known before military ability began to bring him titles, was educated at the Woolwich Military Academy which institution he entered when he was 18 years old.

Fought Germans in France.

Two years later he went to France for war between Prussia and France had broken out and Kitchener wanted to get some first hand experience on the tented field. Consequently he enlisted in the French army as a private and served against the Germans in the army of the Loire.

In 1871 Kitchener became a lieutenant in the Royal Engineers.

Survey Work in Palestine.

The young soldier desired action and, seeing that it could not be had in England, obtained a commission to do survey work in Palestine under the auspices of the Palestine Exploration Fund.

In 1873 Kitchener surveyed the island of Cyprus.

Active Service in Egypt.

When the Egyptian campaign opened in 1882 Kitchener got his chance and served through the operations with honors.

Kitchener was called "A very superior officer," by General Gordon in his journal. The future war secretary had led the Nile expedition that went to the relief of Gordon and had distinguished himself to such an extent that he was made a lieutenant colonel and decorated with a medal.

From 1886 to 1888 Kitchener was governor of Suakim. In fighting against rebellious natives near Handub (Suakim), in 1888, Kitchener received a dangerous wound in the jaw and for a time it was feared that blood poisoning might develop.

Four years later, or in 1892, Kitchener was named Sirdar, or commander-in-chief, of the Egyptian army and his fame in that capacity caused the name of sirdar to stick to him even after he had secured a niche in the nobility.

Kitchener was promoted to be a major general for his services rendered in the Dongola expeditionary force in 1896.

"Kitchener of Khartoum."

Two years later he commanded the Khartoum expedition. The name Khartoum appealed to Kitchener. When he was created an earl by King George in 1914, he took the title of "Kitchener of Khartoum."

In 1899 Kitchener was named chief of staff of the British forces in South Africa, a post he held for a year. For the next year he held the capacity of commander-in-chief in South Africa, conducting his campaigns with ability that commanded the admiration of the empire. He was given a viscounty grant by parliament of £250,000 and was thanked.

For the seven years between 1902 and 1909, Kitchener was commander in chief in India.

In 1910 Lord Kitchener was made a member of the committee of imperial defence. The following year he was named agent and consul general in Egypt.

Lord Kitchener was a field marshal in the British army, a title conferred upon him five years before the present war broke out, and was recognized as one of the foremost writers on military affairs in the world.

Lord Kitchener was a man of magnificent physique, standing over six feet, and was a bachelor. His friends always said of him that he made his way through sheer ability, having no taste for politics or intrigue.

The late president was born on September 16, 1859. At the age of 26 he was made Chinese imperial resident of Korea. In 1907, he became grand councillor of the empire and a year later senior guardian of the heir apparent.

On December 11 last it was announced that Yuan Shi Kai had agreed to allow the Chinese government to revert to a monarchy and that he would become emperor, but there was so much opposition to this plan from the rebels in southern China that it shortly fell through and Yuan announced that the republican form of government would be continued.

HAMPSHIRE CREW NUMBERED 655

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 6.—The British cruiser Hampshire, which was sunk while proceeding from England to Russia with Lord Kitchener, the war secretary, and his staff on board, carried a complement of 655 men, not counting her distinguished passengers. It is not known whether she was sunk by a mine or a torpedo but the fact that she was destroyed while near the Orkney Islands at the extreme northern end of Scotland indicates that she was attacked by a German submarine unless she accidentally ran into a mine which storms had caused to break loose.

The Hampshire displaced 10,850 tons and was in the same class as the Devonshire, Argyll, Roxburgh, Antrim and Carnarvon. She was 450 feet long, 68 feet in the beam and was capable of 22 knots.

The lost cruiser was protected with Krupp armor and was equipped with four 7.5 inch guns, singly in turrets fore and aft; six 6 inch guns in casemates; two 3.0 inch guns; twenty two 3 pounders, machine guns and torpedo tubes.

The Hampshire was built at Elswick and had been in commission about 15 years. She was commanded by Captain Henry W. Grant.

PRESIDENT OF CHINA DIED MONDAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Shanghai, June 5.—Yuan Shi Kai, president of the Republic of China, died in Peking on Monday.

He had been executive head of the Chinese government since October 10, 1913, when he succeeded the provisional president, Sun Yat Sen, who had served but a very brief and honorary period.

The death of Yuan Shi Kai leaves China without a head of government. It will probably be assumed, however, by some member of the new cabinet, which was appointed on April 25, last. The prime minister and secretary of war in this cabinet is Tuan Chi Jui and the foreign minister is Lu Chang Hsiang.

Yuan had been ill for some time, and his weakness had been aggravated by the growing revolutionary conditions in China.

In January he suffered a paralytic stroke and on more than one occasion since that date rumors of his death have been circulated.

Yuan was one of the strongest and most remarkable figures in the modern history of China. He was a believer in absolutism and was always a powerful factor in the army league.

The late president was born on September 16, 1859. At the age of 26 he was made Chinese imperial resident of Korea. In 1907, he became grand councillor of the empire and a year later senior guardian of the heir apparent.

HUGHES SPEECH STIRS THE MOOSE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 6.—Justice Hughes' announcement in Washington concerning his preparedness attitude, if his commencement address may be taken in such a light, only served to stir the followers of Col. Roosevelt to new activity. With some difficulty the members of the Progressive convention from the northern and western states restrained a movement to rush Col. Roosevelt's nomination before the Moose convention without waiting for the Republican action.

Led by Representative Palmer of Louisiana, the southern members in a meeting held in the auditorium, demanded the immediate naming of their leader. Busy delegates from the west are trying to head off the impetuous delegations from below Mason and Dixon's line.

The Hughes statement at Washington provoked no serious comment among the delegates.

It is just such a talk as any American, with the possible exception of Henry Ford, might have made," said W. G. Graham, of the South Dakota delegation. Mr. Graham is one of the most active herders among the Moose. "It does not answer the Progressive demand in any way."

W. L. Matthey of Nebraska, pointedly declared that the justice had not in the slightest degree met the Progressive question. "The statement is no manner of an answer to the Progressive question as to where Mr. Hughes stands," he said. "Mr. Bryan, Mr. Wilson or any other American might have made the same remarks. The announcement has not a line of declaration on the issues of Americanism as Col. Roosevelt states them."

Clarence P. Dodge, chairman of the Colorado delegation, insisted that the Progressive party was sure to nominate Col. Roosevelt in the event that the Republicans did not name him before Friday.

"Any patriotic American," he said, "called upon to talk about the flag would have been forced to say just what Mr. Hughes did. He did not in any way indicate what things he favored to defend the flag, what policies his suggestions cloaked, or what might be expected of him as a candidate. Col. Roosevelt has clearly set forth his position and the Hughes statement does not in any way meet his platform. We are not here to war on Republicans, although we would be justified in view of what they did to us, but if the nomination does not come from the Coliseum by Friday our convention will undoubtedly name the colonel."

All of the state delegations of the Progressives caucused during the day for the purpose of selecting members of the credentials, permanent organization, rules and resolutions committees. The state meetings were strong and during many hours and all of the delegations were notified to report to the meeting of the national committee at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Bids for the construction of the Sleightsburgh bridge abutments as well as the state road through the village of Saugerties, were opened on Monday at the state highway department at Albany, according to promise, but no announcement has been made that the contracts have been awarded, and in view of past manipulations of the highway department greater confidence will be felt when the contract has been actually awarded and the work begun. ROOSEVELT ON HUGHES SPEECH

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 6.—"I see nothing in it that calls for discussion. What Justice Hughes said was nothing more than would be said by any man who has his country at heart."

This was the only expression of opinion that Col. Roosevelt would make when asked today to comment upon the "America first" speech of Justice Charles E. Hughes before the National Cathedral School in Washington.

Visitors who visited Col. Roosevelt at Oyster Bay declared that the colonel is ready to toss his hat into the ring and work heart and soul for General Leonard Wood if the Republicans will nominate him for president. Col. Roosevelt regards General Wood as the ideal candidate and the living exponent of Americanism and preparedness.

"Col. Roosevelt is not a candidate through any selfish desire for the job," said one of the visitors. "He feels that he has the force to put in action certain ideas on preparedness for the safeguarding of the nation. Perhaps the colonel would rather have General Leonard Wood nominated than himself. He admires Wood and believes he would make an ideal president. The others mentioned in connection with the nomination represent only platitudes. Wood represents living action spent in behalf of his country. The colonel believes that the people feel the same way about it."

MARINES KILL 11 HAITIAN BANDITS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 6.—American Minister Russell at Santo Domingo today reported to the state department that American marines near Fonds Verrettes, Santo Domingo, on June 4 killed eleven bandits in a battle with the natives. Two of those killed were bandit chieftains, Melilles and Codio.

The navy department also received official confirmation of the fight on June 4 between American marines and natives at Monte Christie. Rear Admiral Caperton, commander of the American forces, reported that seven bandits were killed in the fighting when a band of 200 natives attacked a marine outpost there. There were no American casualties.

WOMAN KILLED BY DEVANY'S CAR

Automobile Collision on Port Jervis

Street Sunday Afternoon Resulted in Death of Matamoros Woman.

Mrs. Anna C. DeWitt died at 9 o'clock, Sunday night at her home in Matamoros, across the Delaware river from Port Jervis, as the result of injuries and shock sustained in an automobile collision at the corner of East Main street and Kingston avenue, Port Jervis at 5:30 Sunday afternoon. Several other persons were injured.

A Ford car containing Jacob DeWitt of Port Jervis and Mrs. Anna C. DeWitt and her two daughters Alpha and Katie, and Robert Danley of Matamoros, was proceeding along Main street. At the corner of Kingston avenue, a car containing John R. DeVany, an Ellenville lawyer, and his wife, and Mrs. William Doyle and daughter, Carrie, and Bertha Wolfe, ran into the local party.

It appears that the Ellenville man saw the imminence of the collision and swerved to avoid it. The local people mistook the swerve for an intention to go down the Fowler street hill, and as a result of the mistake, the Ellenville car struck the Ford squarely.

The Ford was shoved across the street for a distance, and the wheels then gave way, dropping the car to the ground. Mrs. DeWitt and Katie DeWitt were pitched out, the latter sustaining minor injuries. The mother, however, who was 78 years of age, was unable to withstand the shock, and after being rushed to her home, lived till 9 o'clock, when death took her.

Both cars were badly damaged, and a few slight hurts were sustained by other parties in the car.

SUFFS HOPE FOR PLATFORM PLANK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 6.—Woman suffrage leaders were jubilant today over the fact they have been promised a hearing before the resolutions committee of the Republican National convention. They declared that never before had the prospect for favorable consideration been so good, but their optimism was tinged with fear that the conflicting demands of the two big suffrage organizations might result in defeat with victory almost in sight.

The two organizations are the Congressional Union and the National American Woman's Suffrage Association. Their respective leaders are Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt. Both these women realized the danger of going before the Republican tribunal with opposing demands, and at an informal conference agreed that some compromise should be reached.

The opening overture came from Mrs. Blatch, but it was eagerly accepted by Mrs. Catt. This afternoon was agreed on for a series of conferences. Harmony was declared essential for success.

The hope of victory was reflected at the national convention of the women's party which resumed its sessions at the Blackstone Theater. Word was passed around that Senator Borah of Idaho, one of the Republican platform makers, had pledged his help to the women. Congressman Martin B. Madden, Illinois representative on the resolutions committee, also promised to do everything possible to have a suffrage plank inserted in the platform.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, who is slated to head the committee, was besieged early by women anxious to win him to their cause before the platform makers begin their work. He refused to commit himself.

Bids for the construction of the Sleighsburgh bridge abutments as well as the state road through the village of Saugerties, were opened on Monday at the state highway department at Albany, according to promise, but no announcement has been made that the contracts have been awarded, and in view of past manipulations of the highway department greater confidence will be felt when the contract has been actually awarded and the work begun. Roosevelt on Hughes Speech

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 6.—"I see nothing in it that calls for discussion. What Justice Hughes said was nothing more than would be said by any man who has his country at heart."

This was the only expression of opinion that Col. Roosevelt would make when asked today to comment upon the "America first" speech of Justice Charles E. Hughes before the National Cathedral School in Washington.

Visitors who visited Col. Roosevelt at Oyster Bay declared that the colonel is ready to toss his hat into the ring and work heart and soul for General Leonard Wood if the Republicans will nominate him for president. Col. Roosevelt regards General Wood as the ideal candidate and the living exponent of Americanism and preparedness.

"Col. Roosevelt is not a candidate through any selfish desire for the job," said one of the visitors. "He feels that he has the force to put into action certain ideas on preparedness for the safeguarding of the nation. Perhaps the colonel would rather have General Leonard Wood nominated than himself. He admires Wood and believes he would make an ideal president. The others mentioned in connection with the nomination represent only platforms. Wood represents living action spent in behalf of his country. The colonel believes that the people feel the same way about it."

MARINES KILL 11 HAITIAN BANDITS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 6.—American Minister Russell at Santo Domingo today reported to the state department that American marines near Fonds Verrettes, Santo Domingo, on June 4 killed eleven bandits in a battle with the natives. Two of those killed were bandit chieftains, Melles and Codio.

The navy department also received official confirmation of the fight on June 4 between American marines and natives at Monte Christie. Rear Admiral Caperton, commander of the American forces, reported that seven bandits were killed in the fighting when a band of 200 natives attacked a marine outpost there. There were no American casualties.

WOMAN KILLED BY DEVANY'S CAR

Automobile Collision on Port Jervis

Street Sunday Afternoon Resulted Death of Matamoros Woman.

Mrs. Anna C. DeWitt died at 9 o'clock, Sunday night at her home in Matamoros, across the Delaware river from Port Jervis, as the results of injuries and shock sustained in an automobile collision at the corner of East Main street and Kingston avenue, Port Jervis at 5:30 Sunday afternoon. Several other persons were injured.

A Ford car containing Jacob DeWitt of Port Jervis and Mrs. Anna C. DeWitt and her two daughters Alpha and Katie, and Robert Danley of Matamoros, was proceeding along Main street. At the corner of Kingston avenue, a car containing John R. Devany, an Ellenville lawyer, and his wife, and Mrs. William Doyle and daughter, Carrie, and Bertha Wolfe, ran into the local party.

It appears that the Ellenville man saw the imminence of the collision and swerved to avoid it. The local people mistook the swerve for an intention to go down the Fowler street hill, and as a result of the mistake, the Ellenville car struck the Ford squarely.

The Ford was shoved across the street for a distance, and the wheels then gave way, dropping the car to the ground. Mrs. DeWitt and Katie DeWitt were pitched out, the latter sustaining minor injuries. The mother, however, who was 78 years of age, was unable to withstand the shock, and after being rushed to her home, lived till 9 o'clock, when death took her.

Both cars were badly damaged, and a few slight hurts were sustained by other parties in the car.

SUFFS HOPE FOR PLATFORM PLANK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 6.—Woman suffrage leaders were jubilant today over the fact they have been promised a hearing before the resolutions committee of the Republican National convention. They declared that never before had the prospect for favorable consideration been so good, but their optimism was tinged with fear that the conflicting demands of the two big suffrage organizations might result in defeat with victory almost in sight.

The two organizations are the Congressional Union and the National American Woman's Suffrage Association. Their respective leaders are Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt. Both these women realized the danger of going before the Republican tribunal with opposing demands, and at an informal conference, agreed that some compromise should be reached.

The opening overture came from Mrs. Blatch, but it was eagerly accepted by Mrs. Catt. This afternoon was agreed on for a series of conferences. Harmony was declared essential for success.

The hope of victory was reflected at the national convention of the woman's party which resumed its sessions at the Blackstone Theater. Word was passed around that Senator Borah of Idaho, one of the Republican platform makers, had pledged his help to the women. Congressman Martin B. Madden, Illinois representative on the resolutions committee, also promised to do everything possible to have a suffrage plank inserted in the platform.

Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, who is slated to head the committee, was besieged early by women anxious to win him to their cause before the platform makers begin their work. He refused to commit himself.

SOME GOOD DISHES.

By making out menus for a week in advance, keeping lists of food well liked, thus bringing variety to the table, the housewife will save herself much time for other things. It is also a good plan to place opposite a recipe the cost of the dish. Usually eggs are one of the varying costs, but the housewife will be able to tell at a glance the cost of the dish. As the majority of women have a certain allowance to spend for the table this will help her to keep accounts and perhaps reduce expenses or at least equalize them from month to month.

When eggs are sixteen and eighteen cents a dozen is the time for angel foods, souffles, sponge cake and omelets. When they are fifty and sixty cents a dozen pork cake, apple sauce cake, escalloped dishes and eggless dishes of various kinds will be used.

Angel Food.—Sift one cupful of sifted flour with a quarter of a teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Take a cupful of egg whites, add another quarter of a spoonful of the cream of tartar and a pinch of salt, beat until stiff but not dry, add a cupful of sifted sugar, folding in lightly; then the flour, also folded in; flavor with vanilla and bake fifty minutes in a moderate oven, using a tube pan.

Cocoa Mousse.—Use one and a half cupfuls of cream, five tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar, one and a half ounces of cocoa, or half a cupful, one-half a teaspoonful of vanilla. Dissolve the cocoa in a small saucepan with two tablespoonfuls of cream. Whip the cream and when nearly stiff beat in the sugar and cocoa; mix thoroughly, turn into a wet mold and pack in ice and salt for four hours.

Date Pudding.—Mix together a beaten egg, a cupful of fresh bread crumbs, a cupful of chopped dates, a cupful of sugar, a fourth of a teaspoonful of salt and three tablespoonfuls of milk. Bake in a sheet and serve with whipped sweetened cream flavored with almond.

Automobile Club Calls Attention to Defective Road at the Viaduct—Another Request to Raise Speed Limit.

The attention of the state highway department will be called to the present condition of state highway No. 3,573, at the Stony Hollow viaduct, in resolutions adopted by the board of directors of the Ulster County Automobile Club at its meeting Monday night.

The road whose condition is complained of keeps sliding out on one side and has not been considered entirely safe since it was constructed. In case an automobile begins to skid, the railing erected at the sides would not prevent it from going over the embankment and a serious accident would result. It is at this point that the accident occurred on Sunday by which Henry Ridings of Newburgh lost his life by running his motorcycle into the automobile of Thomas A. Horton of this city.

The directors of the automobile club authorized the erection of two large signs calling the attention of automobilists to the dangerous condition of the roadway at that point, and the signs to be erected will be similar to those placed by the club along the Rifton road.

The present traffic regulations in this city were discussed by the directors, who finally directed the secretary to communicate with the board of public works, the board of aldermen and the police commissioners, requesting that the traffic ordinance be amended so as to fix the speed limit within the city limits at twenty miles an hour and that the ordinance be then strictly enforced.

Another resolution also requested the board of public works to draft an ordinance prohibiting the use of glaring lights by automobiles on streets which have a brick pavement.

THEY SAY.

A pretty picture was noted by an observant visitor at the Burgevin nurseries the other day when Miss Frances Burgevin, aged four, was watching a humming bird hovering over the bright scarlet blossoms of the salvia beds scarcely a dozen feet away. It was a study in color and the apparent tameness of the tiny feathered feeder was remarkable. The scarlet patch on the bird's throat seemed to match the salvia bloom and the green of his body feathers shimmered in the sun. Miss Frances, however, appeared more interested in the surprise of the spectators at the friendliness of her feathered guest than at the bird whom she regarded apparently as an ordinary visitor and a part of the day's work.

Lemons are going higher, according to local fruit men, the wholesale price having jumped from $2.85 to $4.50 a box this week. As there are 300 lemons in a box, the raise in the retail price which has been 20 cents a dozen can be anticipated. Oranges are also higher.

Some fine strawberries were in the market this morning, bringing about 15 cents a box. Green vegetables continue fairly high in price, save for the home-grown varieties. Lettuce is now 5 cents a head with asparagus at 15 cents.

A Son of the Regiment

He Was Adopted From the Battlefield.

By F. A. MITCHEL.

In the summer of 1870 a lady was sitting on the piazza of a chateau on the eastern border of France, half reclining in an easy chair, her feet on a luxurious rug. A nurse, was trundling a baby on the lawn, where the lady could keep her child under her eye.

Suddenly a distant boom broke in upon her peaceful surroundings. In the country at that time in France one did not get news very promptly, but from the capital had come disquieting rumors. This first low growl from the dogs of war spoke volumes. Mme. Cherbolez paled. In a twinkling it was revealed to her that at any moment she might be in the midst of tramping men, or, worse, on a battlefield.

A gardener who was trimming some plants, hearing the sound, stopped and listened.

"What do you think it is, Pierre?" called Madame, knowing only too well without asking.

"I think it is the Prussians, Madame. Last evening I heard at the store that they were advancing—a great army."

"We must prepare to move. Call all the servants, that we may begin packing such articles as we may take away."

The packing commenced, but was never finished. Not an hour had elapsed when two armies began to fire shot and shell at each other, the Cherbolez chateau being midway between them. When the firing began Madame was in the chateau superintending the packing, the nurse was still trundling the baby. Madame never left her home alive, and as for the others, they were shot down or borne down by tramping men.

When the Prussians, after capturing the French capital, marched back to Germany a distant relative of Mme. Cherbolez, or, rather, of her husband, who was killed in the war, Gustav Cherbolez, claimed the estate. It was known that Mme. Cherbolez was dead. Her body had been found in the ruined old chateau. What had become of the body of her only child no one knew. Caught between two opposing armies, there was no expectation that it had survived. Bodies of dead Frenchmen and Germans had been thrown into trenches dug on the Cherbolez grounds. Quite likely the body of little Armand Cherbolez, who had been his prospective to the property, had been treated like other mangled remains.

Gustav Cherbolez was granted possession of the property by the courts. He repaired the chateau and went there to live. He was a good manager, and in the course of ten or fifteen years had largely increased the value of his estate. When his daughter Fanchette was ready to be introduced to the world as a young lady her parents gave a fete champetre on the grounds of the chateau. On the very spot where little Armand had been trundled, on that summer day when the French and Germans fought, there Mlle. Fanchette danced.

Then came the matter of providing the heiress—for she was an only child and would inherit a fine estate—with a husband. Like all men who have accumulated property by careful management, M. Cherbolez was bent on adding to it by every possible means. Neighbors of his, the De la Tour, possessed wealth, and their only son, Jules, would inherit it. M. Cherbolez visited M. de la Tour and proposed a marriage between their children.

An arrangement was made by which Jules and Fanchette were betrothed. The Cherbolez estate was on the frontier, and French troops were stationed in the neighborhood. Among them was a young lieutenant named Victor Martin. He and Fanchette met at a ball given by the officers of his regiment, and he was afterward invited to the chateau. It was soon after Fanchette's betrothal to young De la Tour that these meetings occurred and resulted in an attachment between her and Victor Martin.

Had it not been for this meeting with the young soldier Fanchette might have married De la Tour without any qualms. But now all was changed. She and he had been brought together at their betrothal, and she had found him much improved. But he was not Victor Martin. Unfortunately for the lovers, Victor had neither family nor fortune. He was a fine fellow and, notwithstanding that in his childhood he had not associated with persons of birth, seemed to be to the manner born. He stood high with his companions in arms, and a bright future was before him. It was understood that he had a claim of some sort on the government, but of this he never spoke, being, it was supposed, sensitive about it. It was known, however, that he received his appointment to the military school at St. Cyr as a recognition of some service or incident.

Fanchette kept the attachment between her and Victor Martin from her parents for awhile because it would avail nothing to reveal it. It gradually became known, but so long as it did not interfere with the marriage that had been arranged for her it was not considered of great importance. Women in France were not expected to get through their girlhood without being heart touched, and after marriage they might indulge in sentiment so long as it was only sentiment. De la Tour came to know that he had a rival, but it did not trouble him, for he had given his fiancée several rivals already.

When it came to a settlement of the fate of the wedding between De la Tour and Fanchette the young man's father called upon his notary to look into the title to the landed property of M. Cherbolez, which consisted almost entirely of a tract of land on which the chateau stood. De la Tour did not care to marry his son to a girl who was heir prospective to this property unless her father's title to it was clear. The notary reported that he had traced the title back for 200 years, and the birth and death of every successive owner had been properly attested except the death of Armand Cherbolez, who had perished on the battlefield at the opening of the Franco-Prussian war. But his client need give himself no concern on this account, for it was impossible that a baby could have survived such an experience. Besides, if the child were alive he would doubtless have been heard from.

De la Tour was not satisfied. While he had no doubt his solicitor was right and while he permitted the wedding preparations to proceed, he found it impossible to divest himself of a fear that at some future time a claimant to the estate would come forward. Of course he would have to establish his claim, but De la Tour did not relish giving his daughter in exchange for a lawsuit. This fear, having got into his head, was keeping him awake nights. He determined to make an effort to discover if Armand Cherbolez was alive. He was aware that by making the matter public he might raise up a fraudulent claimant. Therefore he went to work secretly. He employed a detective agency to investigate the case for him.

At a council held by several detectives it was concluded that if the baby had been taken from the battlefield it had been done either by some one attached to the chateau or by a soldier, French or German. Three detectives were therefore put on the work, one to search among citizens, another to investigate the French army and a third to deal with German military records.

The person detailed to examine into the French army soon reported that the One Hundred and Seventy-fourth regiment of the line had adopted a child during the Franco-Prussian war. That child had remained with the regiment, had enlisted in the drum corps and had remained with his foster fathers until he was sixteen years old. Here the records ceased. The corps had so changed that the "son of the regiment" was remembered by none of its present members.

The searcher sought for some of the discharged members of the One Hundred and Seventy-fourth and found in the Hotel des Invalides an old man who said that he was present when, after the battle of Gravelotte, a soldier brought into the regimental lines a baby that had been found lying on its face on the grass at the foot of a tree. Blood was flowing from a wound on its cheek, which appeared to have been caused by a bayonet thrust. It was quite a deep wound, and at the time the soldier left the regiment, which was when the boy was ten years old, its scar remained.

All this was reported to M. de la Tour, and when he had received it he at once made an excuse to put off the wedding. For this he had several reasons. First and foremost, the battle of Gravelotte was fought partly on the Cherbolez estate; second, De la Tour had noticed on Lieutenant Martin's cheek a scar. Third, De la Tour had learned from the young officer himself that he was a foundling, and his name of Martin was not his real name. His real name was not known to him.

One day Fanchette was notified by her father that the match between her and young De la Tour had been broken off. Much surprised, and at the same time delighted, she asked the cause. For reply, her father told her that he desired that she should marry Lieutenant Martin. She flung herself into her father's arms and hugged him.

When Martin came again Fanchette told him that a proposal for her hand would not be unacceptable to her father. Astonished, the young man went at once to M. Cherbolez. As soon as his formal proposal was accepted, he asked:

"Why, monsieur, do you give your daughter to one who has no fortune? Indeed, who does not know his parentage. And now that you know this I am prepared to hear you recall your gift."

"You were found as a baby on the battlefield of Gravelotte, were you not?"
"I was."

"The extreme left wing of the French line at that battle was on these premises."
"That I did not know."

"You were adopted by the One Hundred and Seventy-fourth regiment of the line and received your appointment to the military school of St. Cyr at the united request of the officers of that regiment."

"In this you are correct."
"That scar on your cheek came from a wound that was received shortly before you were picked up on the battlefield."

"So I was told."
"When the battle opened you were being trundled on that lawn out there. Your mother was killed, probably by a shell or cannon ball. In this house, your name is Armand Cherbolez, and you are the rightful heir to this estate. By consenting to your marriage with Fanchette I am enabled to keep this property for her. You are not indebted to me, but to M. de la Tour, who hunted up your record."

Penalty of Abusing Confidence.

The individual who merits and receives supreme contempt of men is he who abuses confidence, because he is betraying one of the foundational bulwarks of social and business life. The law accounts every man accused of crime innocent until he is proved guilty. So the universe presupposes men's intentions to be honest until they are revealed as untrustworthy.

Throwing the Dart.

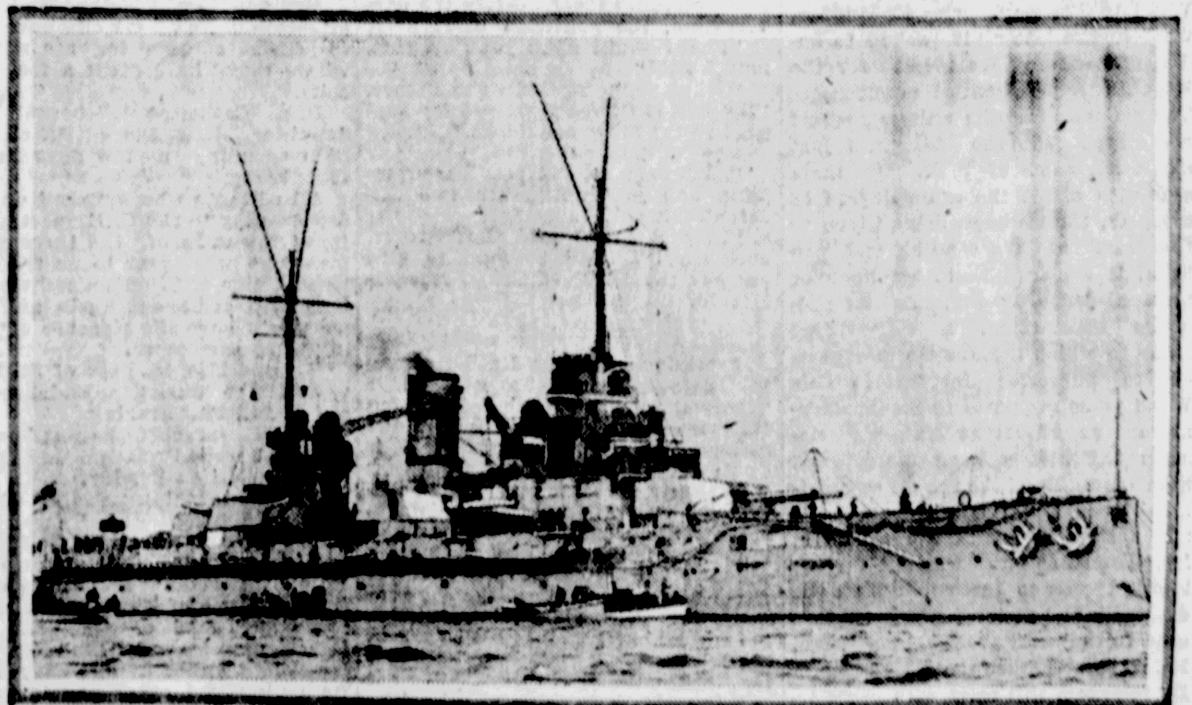

Throwing the dart is a picturesque custom which is observed in Cork, Ireland. Every third year the chief magistrate proceeds to the mouth of Cork harbor in full state. Following immemorial custom, he throws a dart into the sea—a dart with a head of gold and a shaft of mahogany—saying, "I cast this javelin into the sea and declare that as far around as it falls extend the right and dominion of the corporation of Cork to and over the harbor as well as the rivers, creeks and bays within the same."

The Sixth Sense.

Naturalists have long held that there is no magic about it if we postulate the existence of a sixth sense—a relational sense, a topographical sense, a sense of distance and direction, such as resides on a very small scale in a snake's tongue and the antennae of ants, such a sense must reside, too, in migrating birds, in homing pigeons.—London Standard.

ROOSEVELT'S PHOTO OF WHISKERED BIRD

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 6.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt came to New York today from Oyster Bay although politics had no part in the program of his day's activities. The colonel brought with him a number of natural history photographs for an article he is preparing for Scribner's, one of them being a picture of the famous whiskered bird of the West Indies. He had an appointment with a throat specialist, another with his dentist, and still another with Prof. Vladimir Sinkovitch of Columbia University at the Harvard Club.

A private wire has been installed between Sagamore Hill, the colonel's home at Oyster Bay, and Chicago, by means of which Col. Roosevelt will be kept in immediate touch with all that goes on in the convention city.

CONVENTION COMMENT.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 6.—The crowded thoroughfare along Michigan Boulevard lost all its charms for hundreds of the delegates and visitors today. The temperature took a sudden drop and the chill winds off Lake Michigan made promenading unpleasant for those wearing Palm Beach and similar suits, and most of the visitors were grabbed that way. Furs were in evidence.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is causing almost as much of a sensation as his distinguished father would create by his appearance. Every time young Theodore leaves his quarters at the Blackstone he is followed by a huge crowd.

A bunch of Fairbanks boomers are carrying a large size grouch today, directed principally at Roosevelt followers. The Fairbanks supporters staged a little demonstration on the street in the convention district yesterday. They had their hand and were ballyhooing to get the crowd. They got the crowd and then part of the crowd began crying "We want Teddy." The Fairbanks contingent tried hard to drown the Roosevelt boomers out but couldn't do it and finally disgustedly called off their hand and moved on.

James J. Corbett—"Gentleman Jim" is a conspicuous figure around the hotel lobbies. The ex-champion isn't telling whom he is for.

A feeling of gloom that has hung over the various headquarters and meeting places for the last two days like a fog over London, cleared up yesterday at 4 o'clock sharp. At that hour the bars opened up after being closed with the exception of one bar, since Saturday night.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon with the cigar tilted just as high or higher than it was forty years ago, is having the time of his young life, buzzing around the corridors. Coming over to Chicago from Washington "Uncle Joe" insisted on riding in a car with newspaper men in preference to one of his fellow congressmen. "I want to get out with these young fellows like myself," he declared. "These old fogies don't interest me."

California has sent two remarkable representatives to the Republican convention in Mrs. Abbie E. Krebs and Mrs. W. C. Cole. Mrs. Krebs is 70 years old and Mrs. Cole is more than 80, yet they are two of the busiest of delegates.

"Richest man in America, and one of the most powerful" is in Chicago today and he is not being besieged by political leaders. The man is J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the reason he is being let alone is that he will have nothing to do with politics. He is here attending the 25th anniversary celebration of the Chicago University and as quickly as that is over he intends departing.

Postum is made from wheat, roasted with a bit of wholesome molasses—a pure food-drink that is both healthful and delicious. A great many sufferers from headaches, "coffee heart," nervousness, sleeplessness and other ills brought on by the use of coffee with its nerve-destroying drug, caffeine, have found happy relief by quitting coffee and using.

POSTUM

"There's a Reason"

Postum comes in two forms: POSTUM CEREAL—the original form—must be boiled; INSTANT POSTUM—soluble—is made in the cup with hot water, instantly. The cost per cup is about the same, and both kinds are equally delicious when made right.

For Sale by Grocers.

for the east without once looking over the G. O. P. fight.

Betting has been conspicuous by its absence about the lobbies of the Michigan Avenue hotels. Apparently the sporting fraternity sides with the delegates from Brown county who remarked that things were "too onartin."

Mary Garden is here, weighing 124 pounds, count 'em and rooting for T. R. Mary sails for France Wednesday but she declares she won't leave until she knows who's nominated.

At the request of various state delegations, the chairs that ordinarily adorn Peacock Alley in the Congress have been removed. The display of hostility along the thoroughfare was proving more alluring to some of the delegates than were caucuses and candidates.

The principal convention hotel has a queer system of numbering rooms, combining letters and figures.

A Tennessee delegate, weary and bedraggled hurried up to the clerk today and demanded his room.

"You have K9" said the clerk. "Cadine, eh?" commented the delegate. "Well, I suppose that's a kennel. But I'm dog tired so I guess it will fit."

A few minutes later a delegate was assigned to F2.

"That's not a room," he said, "that's a submarine."

There was some excited scurrying around one of the big convention hotels today when a bellows-lunged bellboy hurried through the lobby shouting "General Pancho Villa, General Pancho Villa."

And the bellboy swore he didn't know who Villa was. Former Senator Chauncey M. Depew, looking as dapper as usual, and Lewis P. Payne, of New York, are attracting considerable attention in the hotel lobbies. The former is 82 and according to his friends has been in politics for 82 years, while Payne was a delegate to the convention in 1864.

Republican boom managers have more worries than anyone else in Chicago. Their latest trouble has developed because several times of late after being as nice as possible to delegates they discovered that the delegates were bonafide delegates, but that they were accredited to the Progressive, not the Republican convention.

What few Democrats could be found around the hotel lobbies today were a supercilious smile. Today's returns showed that Chicago yesterday elected seven Democratic judges by majorities of from 17,000 to 20,000.

Mrs. Sarah E. Lyons of Minnesota put in an appearance today. She received credentials as an assistant sergeant at arms of the progressive convention. Mrs. Lyons is to handle the thirty or more women accredited as delegates or alternates.

"Bill" Barnes of New York had to give up his machinations as an old guard boss for a whole day because the New York delegation got into a wrangle over convention hall tickets, and Bill was the only person who could make the delegates behave. He distributed the tickets, and had little or no trouble.

William Jennings Bryan was on the job today as an ordinary reporter. He attracted little more attention about the corridors than the remainder of the news-hungry horde.

Decks were cleared for real action today. The hotel corridors were stripped of chairs, settees and everything movable. The famous Pompeian fountain in the chief convention hotel was boarded over to prevent enthusiasts from wading in.

Coach Far From Home.

A yellow passenger coach of the Florida East Coast Railway was a conspicuous part of a southbound express train on the West Shore at 9:10 o'clock this morning. It was said at the railroad that the car was one used to bring up laborers from the south for brickyards along the brickyards along the river.

CHURCH STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Rondout Presbyterian Church Slightly Damaged by Bolt—First Severe Electrical Storm of Season Breaks Over City—Streets and Gardens Damaged by Downpour.

The first severe electrical storm of the season swept over Kingston on Monday afternoon and the heavy downpour of rain washed out a number of streets and did considerable damage to gardens of householders. At the height of the storm a bolt of lightning struck one of the steeples of the Rondout Presbyterian Church, tearing off a piece of woodwork about ten feet in length and breaking several window panes in the cupola. The damage, however, was slight.

A heavy downpour of rain accompanied the storm and considerable damage was done to a number of the streets especially in the lower section of the city. On Gill street a deep trench was dug in the side of the street by the action of the water and large cobble stones masses of dirt were swept up over the crosswalks and onto the sidewalk. Along the Strand in Ponckhockie the sidewalk were flooded and piles of dirt and stone deposited on the sidewalks. A number of gardens were ruined by the heavy rain fall. A garden at the corner of Delaware avenue and Murray was washed out and onion plants and other vegetables were swept out over onto the sidewalk.

FILTHY HOUSE AND FILTHY CHILDREN

That is the Charge Lodged Against Mrs. Nelson of Spruce Street by Miss Bruyn, County Agent—Mrs. Nelson Pleads Not Guilty.

This morning Mrs. Jane Nelson, of No. 54 Spruce street, was arraigned before Recorder Lang to answer to a charge of keeping both her house and little children in a filthy condition, on complaint of Miss Gertrude Bruyn, the county agent. Mrs. Nelson pleaded not guilty and the court adjourned the case until Friday afternoon.

Miss Bruyn in her complaint states that there are three children, Sara, aged 14 years, Elizabeth, aged 12 years, and George, aged 6 years. She alleges that she had visited the house and found it in a filthy condition, and that the children themselves are filthy about their bodies and heads. It is also alleged that Mrs. Nelson is a habitual drinker and does not provide her children with proper clothing and shelter.

This morning Miss Bruyn was present in court to press the charge and Miss Thompson, the city school nurse, was also present to testify to the condition of the children. Mrs. Nelson entered a vigorous denial to the charge when it was read to her by the court and said that she wanted to have the trial adjourned until she could secure witnesses.

Recorder Lang said that he would hold the case open until Friday afternoon, to which time it was adjourned.

Saturday Tivoli Plays Kingston.

The fast Kingston Baseball Club has arranged to play Tivoli on Saturday afternoon at Athletic Field, and an exceptionally good game is looked forward to. Kingston now has one of the fastest aggregations of players along the Hudson river, and although just organized this season they are making a name for themselves in baseball. The Tivoli team is said to be exceptionally fast and the "fans" may look for a good game, weather permitting.

WHAT HE FOUND

"Having drunk an excellent cup of coffee" said a certain physician, "I found that I hadn't drunk coffee, but Postum!"

Numbers of people, like this doctor, have been pleasantly surprised at the pleasant aroma and snappy, Java-like taste of Postum.

And yet, Postum doesn't contain a particle of coffee—and better still, not a particle of the drug, caffeine, nor any other harmful substance.

MATTERS BEFORE THE SURROGATE

The will of August Spruck of this city has been filed with Surrogate Gill in the surrogate's court and a citation for its probate issued returnable June 19. To his sister, Mrs. Emma Meiger, the testator bequeaths the death benefit due from Shufeldt Lodge, No. 1, of New York city; to his daughter, Mrs. Mary Froltzsch, he bequeaths the sum of $5, and the balance of the estate he gives to his son, August W. Spruck, whom he appoints executor. The will was executed May 25, 1916, and witnessed by Miss Margaret Smith and Robert G. Groves. The value of the estate is $558.29. Robert G. Groves appeared for the executor.

Letters of administration on the estate of Carrie Wolven of the town of Saugerties were issued to her husband, William E. Wolven. The value of the estate is $45 personal property. Benjamin Rowe appeared for the administrator.

Attending State Convention. This morning Dr. Frank A. Johnston and Dr. Harold Clarke of the board of health left for Saratoga where they will attend the sessions of the state convention of health officers. They expect to return Friday morning.

EDDIE COLLINS.

ED COLLINS MAY REPLACE ROWLAND AS SOX MANAGER.

Chicago, June 6.—Rumors are afloat that Charles Comiskey is contemplating a change of managers. The old Roman, it is said, is discouraged at the miserable showing of the White Sox, who, on paper, stack up as probably the best team in the American League.

If a change in managers is made a thorough and complete reorganization of the South Side Club will also be effected, according to reports. Comiskey has what is probably the heaviest pay roll in the league, with Eddie Collins, Joe Jackson, Ray Schalk and other stars. In fact, it is so heavy that it at one time brought censure from the other cities in the league with suggestions that "Commy is trying to buy a pennant."

Despite this, however, the Sox have slumped since the season opened and today are near the bottom.

Whether the reported change involves elevating a man from the ranks to the managership was not learned, but it is rumored that Eddie Collins is being looked on with favor for the job.

DANGEROUS SPOT AT STONY HOLLOW

Automobile Club Calls Attention to Defective Road at the Viaduct—Another Request to Raise Speed Limit.

The attention of the state highway department will be called to the present condition of state highway No. 5573, at the Stony Hollow viaduct, in resolutions adopted by the board of directors of the Ulster County Automobile Club at its meeting Monday night.

The road whose condition is complained of keeps sliding out on one side and has not been considered entirely safe since it was constructed. In case an automobile begins to skid, the railing erected at the sides would not prevent it from going over the embankment and a serious accident would result. It is at this point that the accident occurred on Sunday by which Henry Ridings of Newburgh lost his life by running his motorcar into the automobile of Thomas A. Horton of this city.

The directors of the automobile club authorized the erection of two large signs calling the attention of automobilists to the dangerous condition of the roadway at that point, and the signs to be erected will be similar to those placed by the club along the Rifton road.

The present traffic regulations in this city were discussed by the directors who finally directed the secretary to communicate with the board of public works, the board of aldermen and the police commissioners, requesting that the traffic ordinance be amended so as to fix the speed limit within the city limits at twenty miles an hour and that the ordinance be then strictly enforced.

Another resolution also requested the board of public works to draft an ordinance prohibiting the use of starting lights by automobiles on streets which have a brick pavement.

THEY SAY.

A pretty picture was noted by an observant visitor at the Burgevin nursery the other day when Miss Frances Burgevin, aged four, was watching a humming bird hovering over the bright scarlet blossoms of the salvia buds scarcely a dozen feet away. It was a study in color and the apparent tameness of the tiny feathered feeder was remarkable. The scarlet patch on the bird's throat seemed to match the salvia bloom and the green of his body feathers shimmered in the sun. Miss Frances, however, appeared more interested in the surprise of the spectators at the friendliness of her feathered guest than at the bird whom she regarded apparently as an ordinary visitor and a part of the scene.

Lemons are going higher, according to local fruit men, the wholesale price having jumped from $2.85 to $4.50 a box this week. As there are 300 lemons in a box, the raise in the retail price which has been 20 cents a dozen can be anticipated. Oranges are also higher.

Some fine strawberries were in the market this morning, bringing about 15 cents a box. Green vegetables continue fairly high in price, save for the home-grown varieties. Lettuce is now 5 cents a head with asparagus at 15 cents.

He Was Adopted From the Battlefield.

By F. A. MITCHEL

In the summer of 1870 a lady was sitting on the piazza of a chateau on the eastern border of France, half reclining in an easy chair, her feet on a luxurious rug. A nurse was trundling a baby on the lawn, where the lady could keep her child under her eye.

Suddenly a distant boom broke in upon her peaceful surroundings. In the country at that time in France one did not get news very promptly, but from the capital had come disquieting rumors. This first low growl from the dogs of war spoke volumes. Mme. Cherbolez paled. In a twinkling it was revealed to her that at any moment she might be in the midst of tramping men, or, worse, on a battlefield.

A gardener who was trimming some plants, hearing the sound, stopped and listened.

"What do you think it is, Pierre?" called Madame, knowing only too well without asking.

"I think it is the Prussians, madame. Last evening I heard at the store that they were advancing—a great army."
"We must prepare to move. Call all the servants, that we may begin packing such articles as we may take away."

The packing commenced, but was never finished. Not an hour had elapsed when two armies began to fire shot and shell at each other, the Cherbolez chateau being midway between them. When the firing began Madame was in the chateau superintending the packing, the nurse was still trundling the baby. Madame never left her home alive, and as for the others, they were shot down or borne down by tramping men.

When the Prussians, after capturing the French capital, marched back to Germany a distant relative of Mme. Cherbolez, or, rather, of her husband, who was killed in the war, Gustav Cherbolez, claimed the estate. It was known that Mme. Cherbolez was dead. Her body had been found in the ruins of the chateau. What had become of the body of her only child no one knew. Caught between two opposing armies, there was no expectation that it had survived. Bodies of dead Frenchmen and Germans had been thrown into trenches dug on the Cherbolez grounds. Quite likely the body of little Armand Cherbolez, who had been her prospective to the property, had been treated like other mangled remains.

Gustav Cherbolez was granted possession of the property by the courts. He repaired the chateau and went on to live in it as a good manager, and in the course of ten or fifteen years had largely increased the value of his estate. When his daughter Fanchette was ready to be introduced to the world as a young lady her parents gave a fete champagne on the grounds of the chateau. On the very spot where little Armand had been trundled on that summer day when the French and Germans fought, there Mme. Fanchette danced.

Then came the matter of providing the heiress—for she was an only child and would inherit a fine estate—with a husband. Like all men who have accumulated property by careful management, M. Cherbolez was bent on adding to it by every possible means. Neighbors of his, the De la Tours, possessed wealth, and their only son, Jules, would inherit it. M. Cherbolez visited M. de la Tour and proposed a marriage between their children.

An arrangement was made by which Jules and Fanchette were betrothed. The Cherbolez estate was on the frontier, and French troops were stationed in the neighborhood. Among them was a young lieutenant named Victor Martin. He and Fanchette met at a ball given by the officers of his regiment, and he was afterward invited to the chateau. It was soon after Fanchette's betrothal to young De la Tour that these meetings occurred and resulted in an attachment between her and Victor Martin.

Had it not been for this meeting with the young soldier Fanchette might have married De la Tour without any qualms. But now all was changed. She and he had been brought together at their betrothal, and she had found him much improved. But he was not Victor Martin. Unfortunately for the lovers, Victor had neither family nor fortune. He was a fine fellow and, notwithstanding that in his childhood he had not associated with persons of birth, seemed to be to the manner born. He stood high with his companions in arms, and a bright future was before him. It was understood that he had a claim of some sort on the government, but of this he never spoke, being, it was supposed, sensitive about it. It was known, however, that he received his appointment to the military school at St. Cyr as a recognition of some service or incident.

Fanchette kept the attachment between her and Victor Martin from her parents for awhile because it would avail nothing to reveal it. It gradually became known, but so long as it did not interfere with the marriage that had been arranged for her it was not considered of great importance. Women in France were not expected to get through their girlhood without being heart touched, and after marriage they might indulge in sentiment so long as it was only sentiment. De la Tour came to know that he had a rival, but it did not trouble him, for he had given his fiancée several rivals already.

When it came to a settlement of the date of the wedding between De la Tour and Fanchette the young man's father called upon his enemy to look into the title to the landed property of M. Cherbolez, which consisted almost entirely of a tract of land on which the chateau stood. De la Tour did not care to marry his son to a girl who was her prospective to this property unless her father's title to it was clear. The notary reported that he had traced the title back for 200 years, and the birth and death of every successive owner had been properly attested except the death of Armand Cherbolez, who had perished on the battlefield at the opening of the Franco-Prussian war. But his client need give himself no concern on this account, for it was impossible that a baby could have survived such an experience. Besides, if the child were alive he would doubtless have been heard from.

De la Tour was not satisfied. While he had no doubt his solicitor was right and while he permitted the wedding preparations to proceed, he found it impossible to drive himself of a fear that at some future time a claimant to the estate would come forward. Of course he would have to establish his claim, but De la Tour did not relish giving his daughter in exchange for a lawsuit. This fear, having got into his head, was keeping him awake nights. He determined to make an effort to discover if Armand Cherbolez was alive. He was aware that by making the matter public he might raise up a fraudulent claimant. Therefore he went to work secretly. He employed a detective agency to investigate the case for him.

At a council held by several detectives it was concluded that if the baby had been taken from the battlefield it had been done either by some one attached to the chateau or by a soldier, French or German. Three detectives were therefore put on the work, one to search among citizens, another to investigate the French army and a third to deal with German military records. The person detailed to examine into the French army soon reported that the One Hundred and Seventy-fourth regiment of the line had adopted a child during the Franco-Prussian war. That child had remained with the regiment, had enlisted in the drum corps and had remained with his foster fathers until he was sixteen years old. Here the records ceased. The corps had so changed that the "son of the regiment" was remembered by none of its present members.

The searcher sought for some of the discharged members of the One Hundred and Seventy-fourth and found in the Hotel des Invalides an old man who said that he was present when, after the battle of Gravelotte, a soldier brought into the regimental lines a baby that had been found lying on its face on the grass at the foot of a tree. Blood was flowing from a wound on its cheek, which appeared to have been caused by a bayonet thrust. It was quite a deep wound, and at the time the soldier left the regiment, which was when the boy was ten years old, its scar remained.

All this was reported to M. de la Tour, and when he had received it he at once made an excuse to put off the wedding. For this he had several reasons. First and foremost, the battle of Gravelotte was fought partly on the Cherbolez estate; second, De la Tour had noticed on Fanchette's cheek a scar. Third, De la Tour had learned from the young officer himself that he was a foundling, and his name of Martin was not his real name. His real name was not known to him.

One day Fanchette was notified by her father that the match between her and young De la Tour had been broken off. Much surprised, and at the same time delighted, she asked the cause. For reply, her father told her that he desired that she should marry Lieutenant Martin. She flung herself into her father's arms and hugged him.

When Martin came again Fanchette told him that a proposal for her hand would not be unacceptable to her father. Astonished, the young man went at once to M. Cherbolez. As soon as his formal proposal was accepted, he asked:

"Why, monsieur, do you give your daughter to one who has no fortune? Indeed, who does not know his parentage. And now that you know this I am prepared to hear you recall your gift."

"You were found as a baby on the battlefield of Gravelotte, were you not?"

"I was."
"The extreme left wing of the French line at that battle was on these premises."

"That I did not know."
"You were adopted by the One Hundred and Seventy-fourth regiment of the line and received your appointment to the military school of St. Cyr at the united request of the officers of that regiment."

"In this you are correct."
"That scar on your cheek came from a wound that was received shortly before you were picked up on the battlefield."

"So I was told."
"When the battle opened you were being trundled on that lawn out there. Your mother was killed, probably by a shell or cannon ball. In this house, your name is Armand Cherbolez, and you are the rightful heir to this estate. By consenting to your marriage with Fanchette I am enabled to keep this property for her. You are not indebted to me, but to M. de la Tour, who hunted up your record."

Naturalists have long held that there is no magic about it if we postulate the existence of a sixth sense—a relational sense, a topographical sense, a sense of distance and direction, such as resides on a very small scale in a snake's tongue and the antennae of ants. Throwing the Dart.

Throwing the dart is a picturesque custom which is observed in Cork, Ireland. Every third year the chief magistrate proceeds to the mouth of Cork harbor in full state. Following immemorial custom, he throws a dart into the sea—a dart with a head of gold and a shaft of mahogany—saying, "I cast this javelin into the sea and declare that as far around as it falls extend the right and dominion of the corporation of Cork to and over the harbor as well as the rivers, creeks and bays within the same."

The German admiralty has admitted that the dreadnought Westfalen was among the German fighting ships lost in the North Sea battle.

The Westfalen displaced 18,600 tons. She was 451 feet long, 68 feet beam, and 26 feet deep, and was capable of a speed of 20.4 knots an hour. She carried a complement of 361 men. She was equipped with twelve 11-inch guns, twelve 5.9-inch guns, and a number of pieces of smaller calibre. She was also fitted with six 18-inch torpedo tubes.

The Westfalen was of the Nassau type, and was built at Bremen in 1909. She cost approximately $10,000,000.

NURSES GRADUATE FROM SANITARIUM

The graduation of nurses of the Benedictine Sanitarium took place Monday evening in the presence of a large gathering of friends of both the nurses and the Sanitarium at St. Mary's Hall. There was also a notable gathering of the clergy of the Roman Catholic Church in this city, as well as the members of the staff of physicians and surgeons. The large hall was made very attractive with vases of flowers in each window bench, many American flags, and the foreground of the stage massed with the baskets and clusters of flowers, gifts to the graduates. Throughout the early part of the evening several very pleasing selections were played by the Musicians' Union.

At the appointed time the graduate nurses, the Misses Mary Gonzales Heaney and Miss Frances Regina Adams of the class of 1915, and the Misses Mary Agnes Leonard, Hannah Cecelia Burns, Mary Dolores White, Ellen Elizabeth Coyne and Mary Josephine Walsh of the class of 1916, together with the directress of nurses, Miss Mary Ellen Toomey, R. N., and the members of the class of 1917, marched to their places on the platform. The audience then rose as the Right Rev. Patrick J. Hayes, D. D., auxiliary bishop of New York, accompanied by the following clergy, also proceeded to the platform: The Rev. John J. Hickey, the Rev. John H. Bridgely, the Rev. Joseph D. Neenan, secretary to the bishop; the Rev. Thomas Brown, the Rev. James S. Prendergast, the Rev. Francis Lesniewski, the Rev. Daniel J. Gilmartin, the Rev. Stephen P. Connolly, the Rev. Francis Cummings, of East Kingston; the Rev. Father Fisher, Father Guerin, Father Leonard and Father Schmeering, of Esopus; the Rev. James Talbot, of Saugerties. The staff was represented by Mark O'Meara, M. D., Frederick Snyder, M. D., Frank B. Quinlan, M. D., Mary Gage-Day, M. D., Judge W. D. Cunningham, Robert J. Dwyer, James Dwyer, Richard O'Sullivan, Edward T. McGill, N. D. J. Murphy, John Kearney, Grove Webster, Jr., William Roach, Andrew Cook and William Rafferty, were among the other notables on the stage.

The Rev. Dean Hickey, president of the board of directors of Our Lady of Victory Sanitarium, then extended greetings to the assembled gathering. He felicitously expressed his delight over the large audience which being present, showed its interest and appreciation in the Sanitarium and its graduates. Father Hickey extolled the high calling of nursing as a life work and then paid a glowing tribute to the Sisters in charge of the Benedictine Sanitarium, the staff of physicians and surgeons, and further spoke in words of warmest commendation of the efficiency and loyalty of the young women about to graduate. The speaker stated that owing to the small number of graduates last year it had been deemed wisest to combine the two classes in this year's formal graduation exercises, which presented as candidates for their pins and diplomas the members of the 1915-16 classes. Speaking in complimentary terms of the splendid services rendered by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Sanitarium, Father Hickey closed his remarks with words of appreciative welcome to all.

Floyd Vogt, baritone soloist, then sang a very pleasing selection, "Sunset," by Buck, and in response gave an encore number admirably suited to the wide range of his voice. Dr. Mark O'Meara, president of the staff of physicians and surgeons, then gave a very interesting and brief history of the nurses' training work of the Benedictine Sanitarium. From the founding of the Sanitarium by Sister Aloysia in 1902, in cottages on West Chestnut street, there were pupil nurses and directresses teaching them. But it was not until 1907 that there for a formal graduation of the nurses, when a class of four went out from the institution, then housed in the present building. Since then thirty nurses have received their diplomas in addition to the eight about to have the honor conferred upon them. Briefly stated, when the city was visited by the smallpox epidemic and the contagion hospital was opened, Sister Aloysia furnished Benedictine nurses. The first Red Cross tuberculosis visiting nurse was a Benedictine nurse. With the opening of the tuberculosis camp again Benedictine nurses assisted materially in making a success of the work, by their efficient charge of the work, and later a Benedictine nurse was made head nurse of the tuberculosis hospital. The present tuberculosis visiting nurse for the city and county is one of the institution's early graduates. Still another of the Benedictine nurses has charge of a maternity department of a large New Jersey hospital, and at two periods, graduates of the institution have held the position of directress of nurses acceptably in the Benedictine. Two graduates have established and are successfully operating a hospital in Catskill. And two of the recent graduates have accepted filled hospital positions in a large institution in Trenton, N. J. Others have filled official positions with satisfaction or have taken up private nursing. All have shown a spirit of both the highest altruism and efficiency, and in closing Dr. Mark O'Meara prophesied an equally creditable future for the present pupil nurses, and expressed his appreciation of the devotion and faithful service of the Sisters in charge of the institution and of the directress of nurses.

A second highly appreciated musical number was a soprano solo, charmingly sung by Mrs. George Nettleton's men's shoes and ties, the best man's shoe sold in Kingston. C. S. WOOD'S.

Lowe, pupil of Mrs. William H. Rieser. Mrs. Lowe sang "Spring Song," by Nevin, so sweetly that she was obliged to respond with an encore, which was also delightful. Prof. William H. Rieser presided at the piano as the accomplished accompanist of the vocalists.

Bishop Hayes then addressed the graduates and gathering, delivering a warm from the heart talk that was indeed a fitting close to the years of scientific training through which the graduates had just passed. The bishop reminded those present that in such work as that of nursing, religion must play a fundamental part. The work of the nurse, the physician, was not new. We must go back to Christ and learn of the patient who was nursed by the Good Samaritan, who himself acted as the first ambulance, and who, out of a heart of love took one of an alien people to the nearest emergency hospital, the inn. From then the idea grew. The Red Cross nurse, so important a factor in the world's history in the past and especially today, was typified by the Sisters of Charity of an earlier period. Science was shown to be cold, calculating, without sympathy, while the ministrations of science through physician and nurse, could be filled with the deepest human sympathy. To the nurse is given the privilege of pouring into the wounds of humanity the oil of healing and the wine of sympathy. Again the nurse stands as a sentry of the dead before the dying, and in the solemn hour when the very edge of the borderland of eternity is touched, when the soul, the greatest thing in life, comes fairly before the judgment seat of God, and the crisis is to be met, only the spirit of prayer for guidance and strength can be the proper support of the one who ministers to the dying. Then indeed the service must be reverential, indeed holy. Again, in the intimacy of the family, as the nurse is so often placed, there must be intelligent regard for the confidences received, and a proper spirit shown by the one in care of the patient and assisting physician. The bishop particularly commended the task of the nurse as providing that outlet to all that is highest and holiest in woman, all her most womanly qualities in loving service for others. He felt sure that the "new," smart, bold woman could never be a nurse, and he begged of all engaged in the beautiful profession to keep ever those womanly graces that sometimes seem passing out of existence. In closing the bishop urged that they be women of prayer, taking as their highest guide the great Healer of all, who constantly watches over their work and whose blessing alone can crown it with the highest success, making it a work divine.

Miss Gertrude Rafferty, pupil of Prof. Rieser, then gave a fine rendition of the piano-forte selection, "Impromptu," in C sharp minor, by Reinhold.

To Miss Mary Agnes Leonard was given the honor of acting as valedictorian, who opened her address with the following quotation:

"The deeds of men tell better far than words
Their gratitude toward those who show the way
To higher planes, where great and noble deeds
Make life a fitting training school for heaven."

Miss Leonard added to this sentiment the personal touch of an expression of loyal gratitude and appreciation for the inspiration of the lives led by the good sisters; by their honored physicians; and by their beloved directress. "Self-control, self-forgetfulness, devotion to duty, enthusiastic interest in one's work, the union of human sympathy with personal skill,—all of these have been preached to us by example as well as by words of those whom we have the honor to call our instructors," said Miss Leonard. She closed her valedictory with these words: "On the ceilings of the old European cathedrals there are many lines; some are long, some short; some start from points within the sanctuary, others from points at the extreme end of the great nave; but all converge towards the altar whereon reposes the Eucharistic God. So, too, it is in the lives of our instructors and of those with whom we have lived. Some of these lives are passed within convent walls, others in the midst of the busy world but all have for goal, the dwelling place of God, where, laying down their burden and their sorrow, they find joy and light and strength and compassionate love. There, in the home of the hidden God, may we, too find all that we need in the noble life before us, so that,

Passing through the crowds, as Mary's son
Did long ago in Galilee, our voice
May bid the weary sufferer rejoice
Because by pain, eternal bliss is won!"

With the conferring of diplomas and badges by the bishop, a special honor, the program was brought to a close. Later the nurses were tendered a reception by their friends while the floor was cleared for dancing, fascinating music being furnished by the Musicians' Union.

Miss Mae Sullivan, a member of the graduating class, now a nurse in Trenton, N. J., Municipal Hospital, was unable to attend the exercises, being detained in Trenton by her professional duties.

Public Speaker Must Be Trained.
A school authority on oratory says: "The acquirement of this art is by no means an easy matter. The speaker must be able to employ just the right word to express the exact shade of meaning. He must have the proper temperament, a pleasing voice that can adapt itself to every emotion, and absolute control of the muscles of the body and face. All this comes only as the result of hard and persistent work."

PREVENTION OF SICKNESS.

It Would Prove a Most Effective Blow Against Poverty.

That sickness is the first step leading to dependency and the primary cause of poverty is shown by an investigation conducted by the Russell Sage foundation in New York city. This investigation was made among wage earners and charity organizations with a view to knowing how frequently sickness encountered as a factor in dependency. It was found that over 35 per cent of those in need of aid had been brought to this position through sickness or the responsibility for sickness. Another important fact revealed was that most of the cases studied belonged to the lower branches of labor and that they were here for the reason that either physical or mental deterioration had followed past illnesses. In other words, sickness was found to be a factor producing a low grade of labor as well as dependency.

Of the 687 cases of sickness studied two-thirds were found at the time of the investigation to have been sick more than half a year, and the physician estimated that 235 cases were chronic, while eighty-one were likely to become progressively worse.

That the prevention of sickness is the most effective blow against poverty and dependency was the recommendation made by the committee making the investigation. Some of the needs to this end were pointed out, as more prompt medical attention, education in hygiene and sanitation, opportunity for periodical medical examinations to prevent sickness and better health conditions both in homes and places of employment.

Queer Coronation Gifts.

One of the most extraordinary gifts made on the coronation day of Edward I. was that of 500 horses which had been used by the royal princes and other personages in the procession to Westminster abbey. These horses, all richly caparisoned and harnessed just as they were, were let loose into the very midst of the mob after the banquet in Westminster hall that always succeeded a coronation in those days. The people in the streets were permitted to catch the animals, and to him who caught a horse it and its appointments belonged.—London Globe.

Bolivia's Llamas.

In Bolivia, one of the highest inhabited countries on the globe—La Paz, the capital, being 12,000 feet above the sea level—much use is made of that graceful and invaluable pack animal the llama, which will travel farther and with even less food than the burro, but will not carry more than 150 pounds. The llama in some respects resembles the camel, kneeling in camel fashion to receive its load, and it will not rise if more than 150 pounds are placed on its back; moreover, the weight must be evenly distributed over its back and sides.

TO FADE AWAY.

An Expression That Is Not Slang In Parts of England.

Did you ever urge upon some interloper the advisability of "fading away" when you did not wish to employ the brutal frankness that would have ordered him to get out? And do you think the expression originated with "The Chorus Lady"? Whether or not you saw that once popular play, you could not have escaped the expression, blazoned on thousands of billboards: "Fade away! Fade away, quick!" She did not mean that she wanted the man's ruddy cheeks to grow pale nor that he should undergo any other change implied in the meaning of the word "fade." She wanted him to vanish, to betake himself to some other place without argument or ceremony. To use the expression she used is merely American slang, only a little more comprehensive and rational than "skidoo" or "vamoose," which had hitherto been employed to convey the same meaning.

Around Cornwall, in England, they would take the word "fade" in the sense of "depart" as not at all out of the ordinary. To "fade" means to grow pale or weak, but in Cornwall it also means "to go." Just how it happens to have that meaning the philologists do not agree. It is spelled both "fade" and "vade," and the plausible suggestion has been offered that the word comes from the Latin, the expression "vade mecum," meaning "go with me," having been in common use in the days when a prayer book or a talisman that was supposed to go along with the individual to bring good luck was thus inscribed. The fade dance, in which the dancers go from house to house, has been popular in that corner of England for six centuries.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"PERFECT GIRL" DEcries CORSETS AND GYMNASIUMS.

Boston, Mass., June 6.—Margaret Edwards, the "Perfect Girl" of California has come to Boston. She has a message that will interest each and every girl who wants to be thin and fashionable, or at least, not stout.

Eminent scientists all over the country declare her the most perfectly formed and healthiest girl in the world. She was put through the test with 20,000 girls, representing all nations, and won the much coveted distinction.

Margaret and her gracious mother, who is with her, are not fadists. Simplicity is their motto. In fact, Margaret might well be called "Little Miss Simplicity." She does not force you to a diet. She does not prohibit the stout girl from drinking milk. On the other hand, Margaret says:

"The stout girl may drink all the milk she wants. I drink a large quantity every day. But she must exercise faithfully and vigorously. She may eat the things she likes to, if she will only exercise in the morning and before retiring."

Then, too, listen to what this remarkable young miss—for she's only 18—says about athletics and gymnastics:

"The game of basketball is a crime. It creates havoc with the physique. The gymnasium should be abolished. I never had an Indian club or a pair of dumb bells in my hands. Take your own exercise in your room before a mirror. That is all the gymnasium you need."

Margaret has never worn a corset, and states that she never will. Her remarkable figure offsets all claims that the corset is indispensable to the good looking figure.

A Nigerian's Aspiration.

An advertisement by an English firm recently appeared in a London daily newspaper for an experienced youth for their office in London. Among the replies received was one from northern Nigeria as follows:

"Having seen your name and address I am more than please to ask for a berth in your office. And also as you state in the paper that you want a good and experienced youth in your office which I beg to office myself in the post. I learn typewriter, but have not yet completed it. Shorthand I have learn, and I can write, but not so fast as a man who can write 100 words in a minute."

"If you want me kindly let me know, and if not let me know same."

"I am a Gold Coast youth of sixteen years."

"I hope you will not fail to do the same."

"Expectantly awaiting to hear from you as timous as ever."—London Spectator.

Deperate Diet.

It is amazing what people will eat at a pinch.

A recent arctic explorer seriously advised the wearing of skin clothing in preference to woolen simply and solely because, if the worst came to the worst, one's outfit could be stewed for a meal or at any rate given to the dogs!

Well, when a man finds enjoyment and a sort of inward satisfaction in a stew made of his vest, his shoelaces and his sledge gear, he must be pretty "peckish," and when he gets back to civilization he will make a model husband, never likely to turn up his nose at cold mutton on washing days.

The bishop of Yukon thinks nothing of eating his boots. He had probably declared he was ready for that operation many a time when he was a boy, but he has actually done it since he came to man's estate—in his case the great gold field of arctic Alaska.—London Answers.

More Appetizers.

Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, the Labrador physician, tells the following amusing story about one of his trips on a komatik, or dog sled.

He and his guide were on the way to a distant village, where a small boy was reported to have "found himself in his stomach," which means in the semi-Chaucerian dialect of Labrador that he was afflicted with indigestion. The guide "clef the split" (split the wood) and prepared the luncheon of steaming tea and pork buns, one of the few natural foods that really does not freeze.

"Where," inquired Dr. Grenfell, "are the compressed food tablets? I gave you a month's supply this morning."

"Oh," answered the guide impassively, "I ate them after breakfast," and he hungrily bit into his pork bun.

Events That Pass Us By.

We can be but partially acquainted even with the events which actually influence our course through life and our final destiny. There are innumerable other events, if such they may be called, which come close upon us, yet pass away without actual results or even betraying their near approach by the reflection of any light or shadow across our minds. Could we know all the vicissitudes of our fortune life would be too full of hope and fear, exultation or disappointment to afford us a single hour of true serenity.—Hawthorne.

Favorite Son.

"Are you a favorite son of your state?"
"No," explained Senator Borghum. "I don't believe I can be. A favorite son is too liable to be regarded by outside observers as a pampered pet who might be all the better with an occasional licking."—Washington Star.

The Last Word.

Hubby (with irritation)—Why is it that you women insist upon having the last word? Wife (calmly)—We don't. The only reason we got it is because we always have a dozen arguments left when you stupid men are all run out.

Her Good Point.

"Your landlady seems to be a timid sort of woman."
"Yes, but she always manages to put up a stiff front."—Baltimore American.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Sleeplessness.

The inability to sleep is frequently caused by nervousness—the strain of the day's work. Fatigue, too, keeps one awake, for many there are who are too tired to sleep. If the food eaten during the day has been insufficient one should eat sandwiches of bread and cheese or ham and drink a glass of hot milk at bedtime. Sometimes an apple or two, or some figs or raisins will be enough to satisfy the craving (unrecognized) for food. Drinking water is needful, too, to promote the absorption of the food. Two or three glasses of either hot or cold water at bedtime will be of service. Restlessness or nervousness is always relieved by a hot bath before going to bed. This, too, takes away the tired feeling. The night clothing should be loose at the neck and wrists and roomy, and none of the daytime garments should be worn to bed.

SIMON BROS.' STOCKS

It will be recalled that we purchased the high-grade stocks of Simon Brothers a few weeks ago, and although we attempted to sell all the goods by special sale, we disposed of about half of them because we were compelled to vacate the Simon Brothers store by the new lessee after a few days of unprecedentedly brisk selling.

It is not necessary for us to dwell at length upon the high standard-quality of the merchandise carried by the Simon Brothers. Every thrifty woman in Kingston is familiar with it. The goods are in perfect condition, and some of them are offered at lower prices than the wholesale quotations of the manufacturers today.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 6, 1916.

For years we have had tremendous agitation, resulting in stringent legislation for the protection of the purity of food, but nobody has paid much attention to what happens to the food after it leaves the dealer's hands and before it is placed on the dining table. This indifference will exist no longer so far as the metropolis is concerned. This is "food inspection week" in New York, and inspectors of the Board of Health are visiting the kitchens of hotels and restaurants. To each establishment they issue a card certifying that its methods are either "good," "bad," or "fair," and while the cards are not required to be conspicuously displayed, any patron has the right to examine them. To get the "good" card, it must be proved that the cooks and waiters are free from communicable diseases, that food utensils are promptly sterilized with hot water, that all the employees have clean bodies and clothing, and that no animals other than cats are permitted on the premises. This example should be followed everywhere. The Board of Health of our city makes periodical reports on the condition of butcher shops, and this is a good practice, but it amounts to but little so far as the patrons of public dining tables are concerned. It is only a question of time when food inspection will be extended with logical thoroughness. Future generations will wonder at our recklessness in taking chances, just as we marvel at the heedless indiscretions of our grandfathers.

In a speech before the Jefferson County bar Saturday night Secretary of State Lansing took occasion to answer those critics who complain that this country is more mild in its treatment of English violations of international law than with those of Germany. The elementary truth that the violation of the natural right to life is far more serious than any violation of the rights of property could be was painstakingly pointed out by the Secretary. Further, the mental attitude of those self-proclaimed neutrals who class the sacrifice of non-combatant lives in the execution of the German submarine policy in the same category with England's mail-robbing and property piracy was handled without gloves by the chief cabinet officer, who wondered if the heart of the American people was suffering from fatty degeneration. The fact that there is a difference between property losses which can be paid and the loss of human lives for which reparation can never be fully made is so obvious that no self-respecting neutral government could take any other attitude than to demand the cessation of the taking of human life before the discussion of other phases of international law-breaking. What the Secretary did not explain was the interminable prolongation of diplomatic correspondence with offending Governments in Europe and Mexico.

Gratuitous advice which measures up to some of the highest flights of asininity reported thus early in the presidential campaign is contained in the telegram sent by Henry Wise Wood to Justice Charles E. Hughes, wherein the latter is asked to endorse Theodore Roosevelt for the Republican presidential nomination. The grounds for this unique request are stated in the telegram just about the same as T. R. puts them and with about the same degree of modesty, the message being given to the press at the sending end. In brief, it declared that this hour of national jeopardy demands the Colono's nomination, a self-evident truth to which the Justice is expected to subscribe instantly. This Wood person appears to be considerable of an advertiser but, his telegram indicates a head more wood than wise. Even though an ex-member of the Naval Consulting Board and a High Priest of Preparedness, Mr. Wood has no warrant for his idiotic appeal to Justice Hughes, the decidedly bad taste of which is plain even to the most practical politician. It is a safe venture that this particular telegram will meet with other irrelevant material deposited in the judicial waste paper basket at Washington.

So many municipalities are announcing the attainment of millennial methods in operating their affairs that the spectacle of their different officials running about the country to tell about them has lost its novelty. Galveston, the first commission-governed city, used to be widely quoted, with Des Moines a close second. Nowadays we hear less about the commission idea and more about new schemes of taxation; so it is a safe inference that expenditures under the new and old systems show their usual increases. Houston, Texas, is to the fore with an idea not so novel as to taxing as to the untaxing of industrial properties. Buildings and personal property are lightened there while real estate is taxed at its full, true worth after units of value were scientifically worked out for various sections. Buildings and other improvements on realty were taxed at 25 per cent of their cost while cash in banks and mortgages were exempted, a proposition which sounds suspiciously like the entering wedge of the single tax. But it seems to have brought results in Houston, as building operations have increased 55 per cent annually for three of the five years since the new system was installed. This idea has not been worked out in the east, where assessors make their figures anywhere from forty to seventy per cent of the actual value and where taxless burdens on buildings have yet to be given a trial. It is a safe assertion that the problems of raising revenues to run our more extravagant cities will force more accurate systems of valuation before many more years, for any hope of genuine economy in administration seems to have perished utterly in the minds of officials and taxpayers.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Have you any secrets in your past?" she asked. "None to speak of," he replied.—Judge.

"Don't you think Miss Howler has wonderful control of her voice?" "No, I don't. She sings every time any one asks her to."—Boston Transcript.

"Are you in a heroic mood?" "Of course I am," answered Senator Sorghum. "In any kind of a fight I invariably assume that I am the hero and that the fellow I am after is the villain."—Washington Star.

"Has Dasher increased his literary output since he adopted efficiency methods?" "Yes; he saves all of the phrases discarded in the final draft of his stories, combines them in dozen lots, and sells them as Vers Libre."—Life.

"I thought you were a fresh air fiend," said the visitor. "So I am." "Then why are all the windows closed?" "Because one of my neighbors is just now playing an air on his phonograph that is anything but fresh."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

PATIENCE OVERTAKEN.

By one of those strange changes most of the lady passengers inside the motor bus seemed to be carrying infants, one or two of whom, were fractious.

At one stopping place the harassed conductor was faced by two more ladies, each of whom carried the inevitable baby. But patience, though a virtue, has its limits.

CHEESE.

Harry Lehr, the viveur, was talking in New York about cheeses.

"Why is it that overripe cheese is so good?" he asked. "A man once complained to the waiter that the cheese was eating his bread—and yet it was an excellent cheese—I'd sampled it myself."

"Another man, a gourmet of renown, a real high liver, forgot a cheese once at a railway station. Two or three days went by without his calling for it, and then the station master sent him a note that said:

"Dear sir. If you do not call within twenty-four hours for your cheese, which we have chained up in the baggage room, it will be shot."—New York Press.

PROMISING AND PERFORMING.

During a municipal campaign in Chicago a politician dropped in to see a certain grocer. After the conversation, the politician said:

"I may count upon your support, may I not?"

"Why, no," replied the grocer. "the fact is I have promised my support to the other candidate."

The politician laughed. "Ah," said he, "in politics, promising and performing are two different things."

"In that case," said the grocer, cordially, "I shall be glad to give you my promise."—Chicago Record-Herald.

CONFUSION.

Arminio Conte, the Italian consul to Milwaukee, said the other day: "The very low exchange from which Italy has been suffering is not due to any financial unsoundness. It is due to confusion, the confusion that war always causes. War causes confusion similar to that in the washroom of the sleeper. Some 20 or 30 men were hurriedly and confusedly washing in this dark washroom at daybreak when one of them swore and said: 'Oh, thunder! Here I've been washing somebody else's face instead of my own.' That's nothing," said another man. "You've got nothing to grumble about. The face I was washing bit me."—Milwaukee Journal.

LESSON 3

What Have We Here?

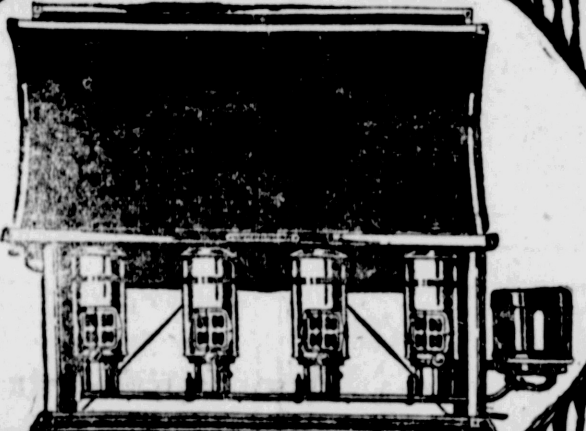

It is a chimney.
But haven't I seen it before?
Yes, it is part of the New Perfection Oil Cook Stove, which is now serving over 2,000,000 homes. It is an important part, too, for this long blue chimney makes the New Perfection odorless, smokeless, and trouble-proof.

Like a gas stove?
Better, in some ways. It's less expensive—burns only about six cents worth of kerosene a day. And it's portable—you can do your cooking wherever it is most convenient.

1916 model New Perfections have the new patented reversible glass reservoir and many other improvements. They are sold in 1, 2, 3, and 4 burner sizes by dealers everywhere.

SANITARY OFFICERS IN CONVENTION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Saratoga Springs, June 6.—With upwards of one thousand health officers from all parts of New York state in attendance, the Sixteenth Annual Conference of Sanitary Officers of the state opened here today. Dr. Herman M. Biggs, state commissioner of health, opened the session in the Casino Auditorium this morning, after which the health officer took up the program of instruction which has been mapped out for them over the three days of convention.

Dr. George W. Goler, who is health officer of the city of Rochester and known as something of a radical in public health work, told the health officers this morning that time-honored methods of fumigation to prevent the spread of communicable diseases were well nigh useless in accomplishing that result. Dr. Goler declared that unless cases of communicable diseases had what he termed "bedside disinfection," the disease would certainly spread beyond the premises.

Dr. Goler's ideas are ones which are coming to be more generally accepted by public health workers throughout the country. In former years it was considered enough if the rooms occupied by patients of communicable diseases were fumigated. In recent years, however, the emphasis has been placed upon disinfection of the discharges from the patient, as these discharges are considered to be the only means by which the disease can be passed on to other persons.

Dr. Matthias Nicoll, Jr., of the state department staff, urged the health officers to acquire facility in diagnosing cases of communicable diseases at the earliest possible moment. He pointed out that in the early days of their attack, there is a similarity between some communicable diseases and other diseases comparatively harmless, and that unless a physician is able to differentiate between them, the chances of stopping an epidemic are greatly lessened.

The fact that quarantines of communicable diseases must be rigorously enforced were dwelt upon by Dr. Paul B. Brooks of Norwich. Dr. Brooks was recently successful in stopping what threatened to be a wide epidemic of smallpox in Chenango county and from this and other experiences drew lessons of value to the health officers.

This afternoon Dr. A. B. Wadsworth, director of the Division of Laboratories and Research of the State Department of Health, will discuss laboratory diagnoses, and Dr. William H. Park, who is director of the New York city laboratories, will tell the health officers of the results of his research work to find an agent which will effectively immunize against diphtheria. Group conferences of the health officers will follow. Tonight the health officers will have a smoker, at which informal talks on the several problems which arise in the course of their work will be given.

SCORING IS BLAMED

Pittsburgh Writers Criticize St. Louis Official.

Think Pitcher Babe Adams Should Have Credit for No-Hit Game—Corps of League Scorers Would Solve Problem.

Official scoring in the baseball world is again causing trouble. It started right here in St. Louis when Pittsburgh writers criticized the work of the local official at the Cardinal park for not giving Babe Adams a no-hit game. One dinky hit, that many thought was an error by Schultz, was the sole black mark against the Pirate hurler, writes Ed Wray in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The present system is truly faulty. Scorers are appointed by home clubs. They are invariably working newspaper men. Sometimes, as in this city, the same man is not on duty in all games, but the job is "split," representatives of several papers taking turns at the task.

Thus several individualities may enter into the scoring in the same town. Pittsburgh writers suggest that the league select a paper, without permitting anyone to know which one it is, and take its box scores from that publication. It is argued that the scorers would then each give his own version, without waiting for the official on it.

But this would only confuse fans who want one ruling on plays and that an official one. And they are entitled to it.

The obvious course, if the scoring is not satisfactory, is to take it out of the scribes' hands and establish a corps of league scorers, each to be assigned to certain series, just as are the league umpires.

There is absolutely no reason why this should not be done now, even allowing for the expense.

U. S. AMAZES OWN CITIZENS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
 London, June 6.—Writing to a London newspaper, Sydney Brooks declares that American citizens are amazed and puzzled by the facts about their own country which the great war has revealed.

He says:
 "That America should puzzle an outsider like myself is nothing. But that Americans themselves should be bewildered by their own country, should confess their inability to explain it, should be at a loss to diagnose its state of mind or to say whether, if anywhere, it is tending—this is really curious and really important."

"Once the easiest country in the world to understand, America has become one of the most difficult. Even the shrewdest native judges admit themselves baffled. The war has revealed to them a new America, of which they hardly profess to know anything. Those of them who are of British stock not only feel themselves strangers in their own land, but are aware that their position as the governing race is being sharply challenged. It is not in Flanders or on the North Sea alone that the Anglo-Saxons are having to fight to hold their own."

"It would be difficult to exaggerate the quite tragic despair with which thousands, and I dare say tens of thousands, of Americans exhibit their doubt and their confusion and their distress. Men whose names are known the world over and who have held some of the highest offices in the republic have confessed to me that they are wholly at sea, that America seems to them a chaos in which all the familiar lights and landmarks have been submerged, and that there is little or nothing left which they dare take for granted."

"What troubles them more than anything else is to find themselves surprised by the war into the suspicion that the United States is not a nation. 'This war,' they say, 'has found us out. We trusted to our school system to assimilate all these aliens in our midst. We see now that it has failed, that racialism is rampant among us, and that there are men calling themselves Americans who are ready to sacrifice everything that is most distinctly American in the interests of the European country from which they came.'"

"But it is not only, they go on, 'this ugly specter of internal division that frightens us. We have been forced into the belief that, apart altogether from the German-Americans and the other hyphenated hybrids, this country is too vast and its population at present too scattered and its component parts too heterogeneous to allow of any genuine national compactness either of thought or action.'"

"Our Federal system, too, is having its revenge upon us. Our people have a strong local patriotism. It centres in the town or village in which they live. Sometimes it embraces the state. Very rarely does it embrace the country as a whole. We have next to no national consciousness, for the average American, America is the world and his own community the most important part in it."

"There is a good deal of truth in these lamentations. The war has long since disappeared from the front page of the majority of the newspapers in the middle west. What happens in Jonesville, Ohio, interests the citizen of Jonesville very much more than what is happening in Europe. Talk to him of democracy being imperilled or of the immediate menace to the United States that would follow on a German triumph, and he either does not understand or simply laughs. He has never seen the sea; it has never occurred to him, and he does not, in fact, believe that America could even be invaded, much less conquered; and outside the Monroe doctrine, which no two Americans can be got to interpret in the same way, he has no conception of anything that could be called a foreign policy, and no desire for one."

"What is Europe to him? The American continent is good enough and big enough for him and his children and his children's children. In his busy, self-complacent isolation he thinks of his country as something apart from the rest of the universe, a favored land in which peace is always to flourish, prosperity to increase automatically, and where millions are to enjoy the well-being and the social and industrial and educational opportunities that in less happier countries have been reserved for the few."

"He looks down at us in our European shambles and just pities us as victims of a madness that he is very determined shall not invade his own land or interfere with his own absorbing affairs. An absolute individualist, he has little sense of the state, and takes a quite cool and prudent view of what 'national honor' and 'national dignity' require of his country. His strongest conviction on the submarine issue, for instance, is that American citizens ought to be forbidden to travel in any ships belonging to any of the belligerent powers, and that those who defy the prohibition should do so at their own risk and without in any way involving the government."

"For the same reasons he is dead against intervention in Mexico. Americans who go down into a notoriously turbulent country seeking their fortunes have no right, he thinks, to expect protection of their government. When they are killed and their property destroyed, his instinctive comment is that they were looking for trouble and found it, and that any way it is no concern of his. He resents the manifold affronts that have been put upon his country by the German government and by German agents and sympathizers all around him, but his resentment quickly evaporates in the excitement of his next business deal."

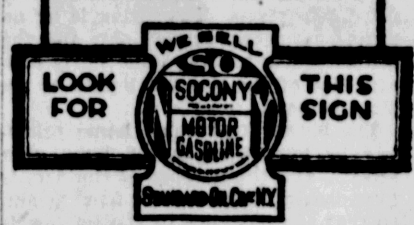

"There are many millions of

CAESAR

Caesar could have crossed the Rubicon on high if he had had Socony Motor Gasoline in his tank.

STANDARD OIL CO. N.Y.

Americans of this type, and they come nearer, I suppose, to being for peace at any price than any community that the world has yet seen. Their women-folk are even more thoroughgoing in their opposition to war on any pretext or for any cause."

MEAT HIGHER AND TO GO STILL HIGHER

Meat is going even higher in the opinion of local butchers, some of whom claim that increasing exports of beef to Europe are the cause of the jump in price. On Monday the wholesale price went up one-half cent a pound for beef, making it $15.50 a hundred-weight. This is the highest wholesale figure meat has reached in forty years, according to one Rondout butcher. To get a reasonable profit on choice cuts of steak at retail, this means porterhouse at from 45 to 50 cents a pound, according to this man.

Lamb is 23 cents a pound at wholesale which means twice that figure for chops at retail. The scarcity of lamb is said to be largely due to the Canadian supply going abroad instead of coming across the border to the American markets as formerly. The butcher quoted above said that much goats' flesh is being sold in New York state markets, probably as lamb, a number of goats' carcasses, labelled under the law as "kid goats" being distributed regularly by some packing establishments in the Hudson Valley. Goats' meat is a delicacy and compares favorably with lamb, it is said, but there is not a great demand for it as such. Pork is also high. The demand for meat locally is increasing as the demand of mountain resort trade is just beginning to make itself felt.

An Invitation To Tea.

The ladies of the Circle, No. 5, of the Rondout Presbyterian Church, are inviting you to attend a strawberry short-cake supper in the lecture room of the church on Wednesday evening of next week, June 14. This supper will be in charge of Mrs. John Huhne and Miss Georgia Deudney, and when, in a day or two you hear all of the good things to eat, which they will offer you, you will promptly accept the invitation. The supper, whose full menu will appear in a day or two, will be served from 5:30 to 7:30. Please remember that you have a date for June 14, to take tea with the ladies at the chapel of the Rondout Presbyterian Church.

Hand Caught in Machinery.

Fred Moon, employed on a heading machine at the Greenkill avenue plant of the Herbert Brush Company, suffered a badly injured hand this morning when that member was drawn into the knives of the machine at which he was working. Another employee shut off the power quickly but not before the bone of Moon's right thumb was splintered and the first and second fingers of the hand badly cut. Dr. Frederick Snyder dressed Moon's injuries which are such as to incapacitate him for several weeks.

Sewers Were Clogged.

During the heavy rainfall of Monday afternoon sewers became clogged in various parts of the city and a force of city employees was kept busy cleaning them out. One manhole at Fair and St. James streets was overflowing while dirt choked the sewer at Clinton avenue and Franklin street. The rush of water for a short period of time was so heavy in some sections that surface water sewers were unable to carry it off for some time afterward.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, June 6.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt came to New York today from Oyster Bay although politics had no part in the program of his day's activities. The colonel brought with him a number of natural history photographs for an article he is preparing for Scribner's, one of them being a picture of the famous whiskered bird of the West Indies. He had an appointment with a throat specialist, another with his dentist, and still another with Prof. Vladimir Sinkovitch of Columbia University at the Harvard Club.

A private wire has been installed between Sagamore Hill, the colonel's home at Oyster Bay, and Chicago, by means of which Col. Roosevelt will be kept in immediate touch with all that goes on in the convention city.

CONVENTION COMMENT.
Chicago, June 6.—The crowded thoroughfare along Michigan Boulevard lost all its charms for hundreds of the delegates and visitors today. The temperature took a sudden drop and the chill winds off Lake Michigan made promenading unpleasant for those wearing Palm Beach and similar suits, and most of the visitors were graced that way. Furs were in evidence.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., is causing almost as much of a sensation as his distinguished father would create by his appearance. Every time young Theodore leaves his quarters at the Blackstone he is followed by a huge crowd.

A bunch of Fairbanks boomers are carrying a large size grouch today, directed principally at Roosevelt followers. The Fairbanks supporters staged a little demonstration on the street in the convention district yesterday. They had their band and were ballyhooing to get the crowd. They got the crowd and then part of the crowd began crying "We want Teddy." The Fairbanks contingent tried hard to drown the Roosevelt boomers out but couldn't do it and finally disgustedly called off their band and moved on.

James J. Corbett—"Gentleman Jim" is a conspicuous figure around the hotel lobbies. The ex-champion isn't tilling whom he is for.

A feeling of gloom that has hung over the various headquarters and meeting places for the last two days like a fog over London, cleared up yesterday at 4 o'clock sharp. At that hour the bars opened up after being closed with the exception of one hour, since Saturday night.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon with the cigar tucked just as high or higher than it was forty years ago, is having the time of his young life buzzing around the corridors. Coming down to Chicago from Washington "Uncle Joe" insisted on riding in a car with newspaper men in preference to one of his fellow congressmen.

"I want to get out with these young fellows like myself," he declared. "These old fogies don't interest me."

California has sent two remarkable representatives to the Republican convention in Mrs. Abbie E. Krebs and Mrs. W. C. Cole. Mrs. Krebs is 70 years old and Mrs. Cole is more than 80, yet they are two of the busiest of delegates.

"Richest man in America, and one of the most powerful" is in Chicago today and he is not being besieged by political leaders. The man is J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the reason he is being let alone is that he will have nothing to do with politics. He is here attending the 25th anniversary celebration of the Chicago University and as quickly as that is over he intends departing.

At the request of various state delegations, the chairs that ordinarily adorn Hancock Alley in the Congress have been removed. The display of hosiery along the thoroughfare was proving more alluring to some of the delegates than were caucuses and candidates.

The principal convention hotel has a queer system of numbering rooms, combining letters and figures. A Tennessee delegate, weary and bedraggled hurried up to the clerk today and demanded his room.

"You have K9," said the clerk. "Cordine, eh?" commented the delegate. "Well, I suppose that's a kennel. But I'm dog tired so I guess it will fit."

A few minutes later a delegate was assigned to F3.

"That's not a room," he said. "That's a submarine."

There was some excited scurrying around one of the big convention hotels today when a bellows-lunged hooligan hurried through the lobby shouting "General Pancho Villa, General Pancho Villa."

And the hooligan swore he didn't know who Villa was.

for the East without once looking over the G. O. P. fight.

Betting has been conspicuous by its absence about the lobbies of the Michigan Avenue hotels. Apparently the sporting fraternity sides with the delegates from Brown county who remarked that things were "too oscarin."

Mary Garden is here, weighing 124 pounds, count 'em and rooting for T. R. Mary sails for France Wednesday but she declares she won't leave until she knows who's nominated.

Former Senator Chauncey M. Depew, looking as dapper as usual, and Lewis F. Payne, of New York, are attracting considerable attention in the hotel lobbies. The former is 82 and according to his friends has been in politics for 82 years, while Payne was a delegate to the convention in 1864.

Republican boom managers have more worries than anyone else in Chicago. Their latest trouble has developed because several times of late after being as nice as possible to delegates they discovered that the delegates were bonafide delegates, but that they were accredited to the Progressive, not the Republican convention.

What few Democrats could be found around the hotel lobbies today wore a supercilious smile. Today's returns showed that Chicago yesterday elected seven Democratic judges by majorities of from 17,000 to 20,000.

Mrs. Sarah E. Lyons of Minnesota put in an appearance today. She received credentials as an assistant sergeant at arms of the progressive convention. Mrs. Lyons is to handle the thirty or more women accredited as delegates or alternates.

"Bill" Barnes of New York had to give up his machinations as an old guard boss for a whole day because the New York delegation got into a wrangle over convention hall tickets, and Bill was the only person who could make the delegates behave. He distributed the tickets and had little or no trouble.

William Jennings Bryan was on the job today as an ordinary reporter. He attracted little more attention about the corridors than the remainder of the news-hungry horde.

Decks were cleared for real action today. The hotel corridors were stripped of chairs, settees and everything movable. The famous Pompeian fountain in the chief convention hotel was boarded over to prevent enthusiasts from wading in.

Coach Far From Home.

A yellow passenger coach of the Florida East Coast Railway was a conspicuous part of a southbound express train on the West Shore at 9.10 o'clock this morning. It was said at the railroad that the car was one used to bring up laborers from the south for brickyards along the river.

CHURCH STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

Roundout Presbyterian Church Slightly Damaged by Bolt—First Severe Electrical Storm of Season Breaks Over City—Streets and Gardens Damaged by Downpour.

The first severe electrical storm of the season swept over Kingston on Monday afternoon and the heavy downpour of rain washed out a number of streets and did considerable damage to gardens of householders.

At the height of the storm a bolt of lightning struck one of the steeples of the Roundout Presbyterian Church, tearing off a piece of woodwork about ten feet in length and breaking several window panes in the cupola. The damage, however, was slight.

A heavy downpour of rain accompanied the storm and considerable damage was done to a number of the streets especially in the lower section of the city. On Gill street a deep trench was dug in the side of the street by the action of the water and large cobble stones masses of dirt were swept up over the crosswalks and onto the sidewalk.

Along the Strand in Ponchockie the sidewalk was flooded and pieces of dirt and stone deposited on the sidewalks.

A number of gardens were ruined by the heavy rain fall. A garden at the corner of Delaware avenue and Murray was washed out and onion plants and other vegetables were swept out over onto the sidewalk.

FILTHY HOUSE AND FILTHY CHILDREN

That is the Charge Lodged Against Mrs. Nelson of Spruce Street by Miss Bruyn, County Agent—Mrs. Nelson Pleads Not Guilty.

This morning Mrs. Jane Nelson, of No. 54 Spruce street, was arraigned before Recorder Lang to answer to a charge of keeping both her house and little children in a filthy condition, on complaint of Miss Gertrude Bruyn, the county agent. Mrs. Nelson pleaded not guilty and the court adjourned the case until Friday afternoon.

Miss Bruyn in her complaint states that there are three children, Sara, aged 14 years, Elizabeth, aged 12 years, and George, aged 6 years. She alleges that she had visited the house and found it in a filthy condition, and that the children themselves are filthy about their bodies and heads. It is also alleged that Mrs. Nelson is a habitual drinker and does not provide her children with proper clothing and shelter.

This morning Miss Bruyn was arraigned in court to press the charge and Mrs. Thompson, the city school nurse, was also present to testify to the condition of the children.

Mrs. Nelson entered a vigorous denial to the charge when it was read to her by the court and said that she wanted to have the trial adjourned until she could secure witnesses.

Recorder Lang said that he would hold the case open until Friday afternoon, to which time it was adjourned.

Saturday Tivoli Plays Kingston.

The fast Kingston Baseball Club has arranged to play Tivoli on Saturday afternoon at Athletic Field, and an exceptionally good game is looked forward to. Kingston now has one of the fastest aggregations of players along the Hudson river, and although just organized this season they are making a name for themselves in baseball. The Tivoli team is said to be exceptionally fast and the "fans" may look for a good game, weather permitting.

WHAT HE FOUND

"Having drunk an excellent cup of coffee" said a certain physician, "I found that I hadn't drunk coffee, but Postum!"

Numbers of people, like this doctor, have been pleasantly surprised at the pleasant aroma and snappy, Java-like taste of Postum.

And yet, Postum doesn't contain a particle of coffee—and better still, not a particle of the drug, caffeine, nor any other harmful substance.

Postum is made from wheat, roasted with a bit of wholesome molasses—a pure food-drink that is both healthful and delicious. A great many sufferers from headaches, "coffee heart," nervousness, sleeplessness and other ills brought on by the use of coffee with its nerve-destroying drug, caffeine, have found happy relief by quitting coffee and using.

POSTUM

"There's a Reason"

Postum comes in two forms: POSTUM CEREAL—the original form—must be boiled; INSTANT POSTUM—soluble—is made in the cup with hot water, instantly. The cost per cup is about the same, and both kinds are equally delicious when made right.

EDDIE COLLINS.

ED COLLINS MAY REPLACE ROWLAND AS SOX MANAGER.

Chicago, June 6.—Rumors are afloat that Charles Comiskey is contemplating a change of managers. The old Roman, it is said, is discouraged at the miserable showing of the White Sox, who, on paper, stack up as probably the best team in the American League.

If a change in managers is made a thorough and complete reorganization of the South Side Club will also be effected, according to reports. Comiskey has what is probably the heaviest pay roll in the league, with Eddie Collins, Joe Jackson, Ray Schalk and other stars. In fact, it is so heavy that it at one time brought censure from the other cities in the league with suggestions that "Commy is trying to buy a pennant."

Despite this, however, the Sox have slumped since the season opened and today are near the bottom.

Whether the reported change involves elevating a man from the ranks to the managership was not learned, but it is rumored that Eddie Collins is being looked on with favor for the job.

Summer Gets Five Days.

Monday afternoon Policeman Lawrence arrested Louis Summer, a stranger, for making a nuisance of himself on Broadway. This morning Summer was partly sobered up. When questioned as to why he had not given his right name to the police when arrested, he said he felt offended at having been locked up. Recorder Lang gave him five days in the county jail.

Commissioner of Highways Chipp Quick passed through this place one day the past week.

M. E. MISSIONARY SOCIETIES MEET

Annual Convention of the Kingston District Held in the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church—Interesting Program Prepared.

More than three score women were in attendance this morning at the opening sessions of the annual convention of the Women's Board of Foreign and Domestic Missions of the Kingston District of the M. E. Church. The meetings will extend over two days and at tonight's devotional service Bishop J. E. Robinson of India will speak on that country and the work being carried on there by Methodist missionaries.

Organization of the convention was the principal business this morning following the opening devotional service which was led by Mrs. E. S. Potter of Port Ewen. Mrs. W. D. Pettenger of the missionary society of the Clinton Avenue Church gave a most cordial address of welcome to the delegates and visitors and paid a tribute to the work done by the former president, Mrs. J. M. Cornish. Mrs. A. S. Carroll of Hobart made a brief response in which she referred to the inspiration given the convention by the hospitality of the Kingston church people.

Miss Emily Hale, the district secretary then followed with the minutes of the sessions at Hobart on June 9, 1915, and those were approved. Mrs. Myron Teller followed with a report as treasurer for the district, showing a balance on hand after the year's activities.

Mrs. W. G. Slicker, Secretary of Literature, reported on the circulation of missionary pamphlets in the district.

The Rev. Dr. P. N. Chase led the devotional prayer after which the delegates adjourned to the church parlors where a delicious luncheon was served.

Committees were named at the morning session as follows:

Courtesies—Mrs. A. S. Carroll, Mrs. Winans.

Nominations—Mrs. E. A. D. Potter, Mrs. J. G. Finger and Mrs. Edw. Angle.

A praise service opened the afternoon program, this being followed by the singing from the Branch hymnal in which Mrs. R. E. Bell, wife of the district superintendent, gave a most interesting summary of the work of the recent gathering at Rome, N. Y.

Committee reports followed with an address on Jubilee Work by Mrs. W. R. Blackie and a solo by Miss Magdalena Hyde. Miss Mary Brown and Miss Ruth Bell also contributed to the program with an entertaining dialogue.

The chief speech of the afternoon proved highly interesting, this being given by Mrs. Elmer E. Count, wife of the head of the M. E. mission work in Bulgaria. Mrs. Count appeared in native costume and her interesting word pictures of the national life and customs of the people of this country which is now plunged in war were listened to with greatest attention by her audience.

The pastor, the Rev. G. M. Cranston, will preside at the devotional service this evening.

Delegates and others in attendance registered up to noon were as follows:

Catskill—Mrs. John Salisbury, Mrs. N. L. King, Mrs. B. Wolf, Mrs. W. H. Thorne, Miss H. E. Winans, Mrs. C. A. Weed, Miss Antoinette B. Wood.

Port Ewen—Mrs. O. A. Smith, Mrs. E. A. D. Potter, Mrs. E. A. Brookhart, Mrs. George Shultz, Mrs. Mary Lynn, Mrs. G. P. Griffin.

Kingston—Miss Emily Hale, Mrs. W. H. Hale, Mrs. P. C. Wevart, Mrs. W. H. Ritch, Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson, Mrs. John Keegan, Mrs. S. Higgins, Mrs. T. H. Baragwanath, Mrs. Dora S. Hardenburgh, Mrs. Edwin Angle, Mrs. Louis B. Basten, Mrs. Myron Teller, Mrs. P. N. Chase, the Rev. Dr. P. N. Chase, J. Dean.

Saugerties—Mrs. B. F. Fellows, Mrs. H. I. Hoey, Mrs. G. F. Finger, Miss Hallenbeck.

12:30—Luncheon served by Local Auxiliary.

CHICKENS DUCKS and TURKEYS

FEEDING THE YOUNG TURKEY

Breeder Should Remember, First of All, Never to Overfeed and Never Give Anything Spoiled.

In feeding small turkeys, remember never to overfeed, and never to feed anything the least spoiled. Feed often but very little at a time. Provide grit and charcoal. Feed plenty of sour milk in addition to fresh drinking water. Mix a little wheat bran and middlings with the cornmeal, moisten this a very little with sour milk and feed sparingly in low rim pie tins. In addition feed very sparingly of a little grain mixture as follows: Equal parts of lime, cracked, untainted, thoroughly dried corn and wheat. Pinhead oatmeal and a little millet are also very good.

Green food in the form of finely sliced onion tops are very good, but must indeed be fed very sparingly.

Keep the turkeys cool, and above all, free from lice and in clean surroundings. Do not allow them to stroll through long grass early in the morning, thus becoming exhausted and wet.

FEEDING MILK TO CHICKENS

Has Most Favorable Influence on Growth and Lessening of Mortality Among Flocks.

The feeding of milk to young chicks has a most favorable influence on the growth, and on lessening the mortality average.

Sweet and sour milk are of equal value in chick feeding. The degree of sourness does not affect the nutritive value.

Chicks fed milk freely should have abundant exercise. This applies particularly to early hatched or brooder chicks.

In no way is milk injurious, but whether you feed sweet or sour milk, the same should be fed continually until the end of the milk feeding period. Whichever is most convenient, adhere to consistently.

SPROUTED OATS FOR WINTER

Excellent Green Food for Chickens During Cold Weather—How the Trick is Performed.

Sprouted oats have proved an excellent feed for chickens during winter months. The oats may be sprouted in a regular sprouter, in trays by the kitchen stove, in the cellar, on dirt or on burlap. The trick is to soak the oats with water, spread them out in the light and keep them warm and moist until the blades are from three to six inches long.

A successful feeder soaks the oats for 24 hours, spreads them in a shallow box and places it in the cellar. Frequently an inch or more of sand is placed in the bottom of the box upon which the oats are spread.

Watch Fowls Closely. It often happens that when mated up, the male is not popular—at least not generally. It is a common thing to notice some females that persistently and successfully avoid the male placed with them, and a change to another pen and male produce a marked difference. If there are such cases in your yards, try the changing method.

Don't Doctor Sick Fowls. As a general rule it does not pay to doctor sick fowls and it is much better practice to prevent disease than to cure it.

Easy Flock to Manage. On the average farm a flock of 100 to 150 hens is more easily managed profitably than one of a thousand.

Pigeon Terms.

At a day old pigeons are known as "peepers"; at ten days old, "squeakers," and at three weeks old, "squealers."

Small Flocks Pay Best. Fowls are said to give the greatest profits when run in small flocks of 50 or not more than 100.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT BIRDS?

Probably Less Than You Would Like to, So The Freeman Gives You a Free Course in Ornithology.

Many persons are interested in our native wild birds but are unable to identify the various kinds. Books about birds are costly, so with a view to promoting nature study and an intelligent interest in birds, The Freeman begins today the publication of a series of illustrated articles descriptive of the more common kinds of wild birds. They are worth preserving in a scrap book and as there will be some fifty or more of them in the series, such a scrap book will be a pretty complete work when the articles are all assembled in it.

With their very powerful teeth they can cut through a branch three inches thick in as many minutes. The pieces cut off are held by the teeth and forepaws and carried or dragged to the spot where they are to be used and fitted into place. The fitting is by no means carelessly carried out, and the beaver seems to have some fairly definite idea of the size and length of the piece he needs.

The beaver makes his home primarily by burrowing in the bank of a stream, and the purpose of the dam is to maintain the water at a fixed height, so that the entrance to the burrow is always covered as a protection from enemies.

Though, however, the beaver has intelligence enough for the building of his dam, he has not sufficient to know when to stop building, and so he increases the structure and raises the level of his pool until burrowing upward no longer serves to keep his house above water, and so he raises the height of his walls and roof by building with branches and mud the well known dome shaped "lodges."

Charles Lamb in British Museum. The British museum reading room was a favorite resort of Charles Lamb in the days following his retirement from the East India House. "I am going through a course of reading at the museum," he writes to Bernard Barton in 1828. "The Garrick plays, out of part of which I formed my 'Specimens.' I have 2,000 to go through and in a few weeks have dispatched the type of 'em. It is a sort of office to me; good to 4 of a same. It does me good. Man must have regular occupation that has been used to it." Mary Lamb expressed her delight in her brother's fondness for the museum "as occupying his time and keeping him from his walks, which she seemed to think over-long."

His Modest Position. "I don't envy the men who manage the big hotels in the cities," gloomily said the landlord of the Petunia tavern. "It is as much as I can do to make a bluff at keeping the p've got. Yesterday one of the two dining room girls said that the other one's best feller had two left feet, and in less than no time those two young ladies had forth to with ketchup bottles and so forth. Just imagine the spritely function there would be in a hotel with 700 employees, all battling with ketchup bottles!"—Judge.

Possibly. Mr. Briggs—Here's an article, dear, a very interesting article, in which a prominent doctor says that a certain cure for nervousness in women is silence, complete silence. Mrs. Briggs (promptly)—I'll bet anything some fool of a man doctor wrote that!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

An Aviation Question. What character in the Bible ought to know most about flying? Aaron ought.

WORK OF THE BEAVERS.

Wonderful Skill and Activity of These Clever Dam Builders.

There are probably few examples of animal industry and constructive ability more widely known than those of the beaver—every one carries from his school days a general notion that beavers build dams and other things—and, though there may be a considerable margin between popular belief and the facts of fact, enough remains to attach a high degree of interest to the beaver.

With their very powerful teeth they can cut through a branch three inches thick in as many minutes. The pieces cut off are held by the teeth and forepaws and carried or dragged to the spot where they are to be used and fitted into place. The fitting is by no means carelessly carried out, and the beaver seems to have some fairly definite idea of the size and length of the piece he needs.

HOPE FOR WRECK SURVIVORS DEAD

All England Plunged in Gloom Over the Death of the War Secretary and His Staff.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

London, June 6.—Hope that Lord Kitchener, the war secretary, and his staff, escaped death when the cruiser Hampshire was sunk last night by a mine or submarine, was practically abandoned this evening.

Search had been made along the Scottish coast ever since the Hampshire was destroyed off the Orkney Islands at 8 o'clock last night, but no trace of Lord Kitchener was found.

Intense gloom settled down over England. Many public gatherings were adjourned. The Baltic Exchange was closed today.

Lord Kitchener was on his way to Russia when the cruiser was sunk.

Accompanying Lord Kitchener as his staff were Hugh James O'Beirne, former minister of the British embassy in Petrograd and former minister to Bulgaria; O. A. Fitzgerald, private military secretary to Lord Kitchener; Brigadier General Sir Frederick Donaldson, Lieut. R. D. Macpherson, F. R. Robertson and Detective MacLaughlin.

As soon as word of the loss of the Hampshire was received here, a meeting of the war council was held.

Sir William Robertson, chief of the general staff, is now in London.

Flares on public buildings were at half mast tonight. This was regarded as significant, as half-mast flags always stand for death.

The blinds on the windows of the war office, which is now kept open night and day, were tightly drawn.

Lord Kitchener's visit to Russia was kept a profound secret, and it is regarded very unlikely that the Germans could have learned of it.

In official circles, it is believed the Hampshire struck a mine.

Dr. Perkins is well known in this city. He came to Kingston for his health and for a time resided with the Rev. Dr. P. M. Waters, while the latter was pastor of St. James' M. E. Church. Afterward he went to China as a medical missionary and built a hospital there in which one of the beds was endowed by the Sunday School of St. James' Church.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Terpening at Port Ewen was the scene on Friday evening at 8 o'clock of a very quiet but charming home wedding when their daughter, Miss Pearl Florence Terpening, and Harry Griffin Houghtaling, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ezekiah Houghtaling, both of Port Ewen, were married by the Rev. Homer L. Steffer, pastor of the Reformed Church, of Port Ewen. Only immediate members of family were present. The ring ceremony was used. The home was prettily decorated with ferns, palms and flowers. The bride wore a

The graduation of nurses of the Benedictine Sanitarium took place Monday evening in the presence of a large gathering of friends of both the nurses and the Sanitarium at St. Mary's Hall. There was also a notable gathering of the clergy of the Roman Catholic Church in this city, as well as the members of the staff of physicians and surgeons. The large hall was made very attractive with vases of flowers in each window bench, many American flags, and the foreground of the stage massed with the baskets and clusters of flowers, gifts to the graduates. Throughout the early part of the evening several very pleasing selections were played by the Musicians' Union.

At the appointed time the graduate nurses, the Misses Mary Gonzaga Heaney and Miss Frances Regina Adams of the class of 1915, and the Misses Mary Agnes Leonard, Hannah Cecilia Burns, Mary Dolores White, Ellen Elizabeth Coyne and Mary Josephine Walsh of the class of 1916, together with the directors of the Sanitarium, Miss Mary Ellen Toomey, R. N., and the members of the class of 1917, marched to their places on the platform. The audience then rose as the Right Rev. Patrick J. Hayes, D. D., auxiliary bishop of New York, accompanied by the following clergy, also proceeded to the platform: The Rev. John J. Hickey, the Rev. John H. Brady, the Rev. Joseph D. Neenan, secretary to the bishop; the Rev. Thomas Brown, the Rev. James S. Prendergast, the Rev. Francis Lesniowski, the Rev. Daniel J. Gilmartin, the Rev. Stephen P. Connolly, the Rev. Francis Cummings, of East Kingston; the Rev. Father Fisher, Father Guerin, Father Leonard and Father Schmeigler, of Esopus; the Rev. James Talbot, of Saugerties. The staff was represented by Mark O'Meara, M. D., Frederick Snyder, M. D., Frank B. Quinn, M. D., Mary Gage-Day, M. D., Judge W. D. Cunningham, Robert J. Dwyer, James Dwyer, Richard O'Sullivan, Edward T. McGill, N. D. J. Murphy, John Kearney, Grove Webster, Jr., William Roach, Andrew Cook and William Rafferty, were among the other notables on the stage.

The Rev. Dean Hickey, president of the board of directors of Our Lady of Victory Sanitarium, then extended greetings to the assembled gathering. He felicitously expressed his delight over the large audience which being present, showed its interest and appreciation in the Sanitarium and its graduates. Father Hickey extolled the high calling of nursing as a life work and then paid a glowing tribute to the Sisters in charge of the Benedictine Sanitarium, the staff of physicians and surgeons, and further spoke in words of warmest commendation of the efficiency and loyalty of the young women about to graduate. The speaker stated that owing to the small number of graduates last year it had been deemed wisest to combine the two classes in this year's formal graduation exercises, which presented as candidates for their pins and diplomas the members of the 1915-16 classes. Speaking in complimentary terms of the excellent services rendered by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Sanitarium, Father Hickey closed his remarks with words of appreciative welcome to all.

Flood Vogt baritone soloist, then sang a very pleasing selection, "Sunset," by Buck, and in response gave an encore number admirably suited to the wide range of his voice. Dr. Mark O'Meara, president of the staff of physicians and surgeons, then gave a very interesting and brief history of the nurses' training work of the Benedictine Sanitarium. From the founding of the Sanitarium by Sister Aloysia in 1902, in cottages on West Chestnut street, there were pupil nurses and directresses teaching them. But it was not until 1907 that there for a formal graduation of the nurses, when a class of four went out from the institution, then housed in the present building. Since then thirty nurses have received their diplomas in addition to the eight about to have the honor conferred upon them. Briefly stated, when the city was visited by the smallpox epidemic and the contagion hospital was opened, Sister Aloysia furnished Benedictine nurses. The first Red Cross tuberculosis visiting nurse was a Benedictine nurse. With the opening of the tuberculosis camp again Benedictine nurses assisted materially in making a success of the work, by their efficient charge of the work, and later a Benedictine nurse was made head nurse of the tuberculosis hospital. The present tuberculosis visiting nurse for the city and county is one of the institution's early graduates. Still another of the Benedictine nurses has charge of a maternity department of a large New Jersey hospital, and at two periods, graduates of the institution have held the position of directress of nurses acceptably in the Benedictine. Two graduates have established and are successfully operating a hospital in Catskill. And two of the recent graduates have accepted filled hospital positions in a large institution in Trenton, N. J. Others have filled official positions with satisfaction or have taken up private nursing. All have shown a spirit of both the highest altruism and efficiency, and in closing Mark O'Meara proposed an equally creditable future for the present pupil nurses, and expressed his appreciation of the devotion and faithful service of the Sisters in charge of the institution and of the directress of nurses.

A second highly appreciated musical number was a soprano solo, charmingly sung by Mrs. George Nettleton's men's shoes and ties, the best man's shoe sold in Kingston. C. S. WOODS.

Our $3.00 Sennet and English Split Straw Hats, never were as good as this year. C. S. WOODS.

Nettleton's men's shoes and ties, the best man's shoe sold in Kingston. C. S. WOODS.

Lowe, pupil of Mrs. William H. Riesen. Mrs. Lowe sang "Spring Song," by Nevin, so sweetly that she was obliged to respond with an encore, which was also delightful. Prof. William H. Riesen presided at the piano as the accomplished accompanist of the vocalists.

Bishop Hayes then addressed the graduates and gathered, delivering a warm from the heart talk that was indeed a fitting close to the years of scientific training through which the graduates had just passed. The bishop reminded those present that in such work as that of nursing, religion must play a fundamental part. The work of the nurse, the physician, was not new. We must go back to Christ and learn of the patient who was nursed by the Good Samaritan, who himself acted as the first ambulance, and who, out of a heart of love took one of an alien people to the nearest emergency hospital, the inn. From then the idea grew. The Red Cross nurse, so important a factor in the world's history in the past and especially today, was typified by the Sisters of Charity of an earlier period. Science was shown to be cold, calculating, without sympathy, while the ministrations of science through physician and nurse, could be filled with the deepest human sympathy. To the nurse is given the privilege of pouring into the wounds of humanity the oil of healing and the wine of sympathy. Again the nurse stands as a sentry of the dead before the dying, and in the solemn hour when the very edge of the borderland of eternity is touched, when the soul, the greatest thing in life, comes fairly before the judgment seat of God, and the crisis is to be met, only the spirit of prayer for guidance and strength can be the proper support of the one who ministers as nurse. Then indeed the service must be reverential, indeed holy. Again, in the intimacy of the family, as the nurse is so often placed, there must be intelligent regard for the confidence received, and a proper spirit shown by the one in care of the patient and assisting the physician. The bishop particularly commended the task of the nurse as providing that outlet to all that is highest and holiest in woman, all her most womanly qualities in loving service for others. He felt sure that the "new," smart, bold woman could never be a nurse, and he begged of all engaged in the beautiful profession to keep ever those womanly graces that sometimes seem passing out of existence. In closing the bishop urged that they be women of prayer, taking as their highest guide the great Healer of all, who constantly watches over their work and whose blessing alone can crown it with the highest success, making it a work divine.

Miss Gertrude Rafferty, pupil of Prof. Riesen, then gave a fine rendition of the piano-forte selection, "Imprimus," in C sharp minor, by Reinhold.

To Miss Mary Agnes Leonard was given the honor of acting as valedictorian, who opened her address with the following quotation:

"The deeds of men tell better far than words. Their gratitude toward those who show the way To higher planes, where great and noble deeds Make life a fitting training school for heaven."

Miss Leonard added to this sentiment the personal touch of an expression of loyal gratitude and appreciation for the inspiration of the nurses led by the good Sisters; by their honored physicians; and by their beloved directress. "Self-control, self-forgetfulness, devotion to duty, enthusiastic interest in one's work, the union of human sympathy with personal skill, all of these have been preached to us by example as well as by words of those whom we have the honor to call our instructors," said Miss Leonard. She closed her valedictory with these words: "On the ceilings of the old European cathedrals there are many lines; some are long, some short; some start from points within the sanctuary, others from points at the extreme end of the great nave; but all converge towards the altar whereon reposes the Eucharistic God. So, too, it is in the lives of our instructors and of those with whom we have lived. Some of these lives are passed within convent walls, others in the midst of the busy world but all have for goal, the dwelling place of God, where, laying down their burden and their sorrow, they find joy and light and strength and compassionate love. There, in the home of the hidden God, may we, too find all that we need in the noble life before us, so that,

Passing through the crowds, as Mary's son Did long ago in Galilee, our voice May bid the weary sufferer rejoice Because by pain, eternal bliss is won!"

With the conferring of diplomas and badges by the bishop, a special honor, the program was brought to a close. Later the nurses were tendered a reception by their friends while the floor was cleared for dancing, fascinating music being furnished by the Musicians' Union.

Miss Mae Sullivan, a member of the graduating class, now a nurse in Trenton, N. J., Municipal Hospital, was unable to attend the exercises, being detained in Trenton by her professional duties.

Public Speaker Must Be Trained. A school authority on oratory says: "The requirement of this art is by no means an easy matter. The speaker must be able to employ just the right word to express the exact shade of meaning. He must have the proper temperament, a pleasing voice that can adapt itself to every emotion, and absolute control of the muscles of the body and face. All this comes only as the result of hard and persistent work."

Laughter Always Best. One good, hearty laugh is a bomb-shell exploding in the right place, while spleen and discontent are a gun that kicks over the man who shoots it off.—Talmage.

PREVENTION OF SICKNESS.

It Would Prove a Most Effective Blow Against Poverty.

That sickness is the first step leading to dependency and the primary cause of poverty is shown by an investigation conducted by the Russell Sage Foundation in New York city. This investigation was made among wage earners and charity organizations with a view to knowing how frequently sickness encountered as a factor in dependency. It was found that over 35 per cent of those in need of aid had been brought to this position through sickness or the responsibility for sickness. Another important fact revealed was that most of the cases studied belonged to the lower branches of labor and that they were here for the reason that either physical or mental deterioration had followed past illnesses. In other words, sickness was found to be a factor producing a low grade of labor as well as dependency.

Of the 687 cases of sickness studied two-thirds were found at the time of the investigation to have been sick more than half a year, and the physician estimated that 295 cases were chronic, while eighty-one were likely to become progressively worse.

That the prevention of sickness is the most effective blow against poverty and dependency was the recommendation made by the committee making the investigation. Some of the needs to this end were pointed out, as more prompt medical attention, education in hygiene and sanitation, opportunity for periodical medical examinations to prevent sickness and better health conditions both in homes and places of employment.

Queer Coronation Gifts. One of the most extraordinary gifts made on the coronation day of Edward I. was that of 500 horses which had been used by the royal princes and other personages in the procession to Westminster abbey. These horses, all richly caparisoned and harnessed just as they were, were let loose into the very midst of the mob after the banquet in Westminster hall that always succeeded a coronation in those days. The people in the streets were permitted to catch the animals, and to him who caught a horse it and its appointments belonged.—London Globe.

Bolivia's Llamas. In Bolivia, one of the highest inhabited countries on the globe—La Paz, the capital, being 12,000 feet above the sea level—much use is made of that graceful and invaluable pack animal the llama, which will travel farther and with even less food than the burro, but will not carry more than 150 pounds. The llama in some respects resembles the camel, kneeling in camel fashion to receive its load, and it will not rise if more than 150 pounds are placed on its back; moreover, the weight must be evenly distributed over its back and sides.

TO FADE AWAY.

An Expression That Is Not Going to Parts of England.

Did you ever urge upon some indolent the advisability of "fading away" when you did not wish to employ the brutal frankness that would have ordered him to get out? And do you think the expression originated with "The Chorus Lady"? Whether or not you saw that once popular play, you could not have escaped the expression, blazoned on thousands of billboards: "Fade away! Fade away, quickly!" You did not mean that she wanted the man's ruddy cheeks to grow pale nor that he should undergo any other change implied in the meaning of the word "fade." She wanted him to vanish, to betake himself to some other place without argument or ceremony. To use the expression she used is merely American slang, only a little more comprehensive and rational than "skidoo" or "vamoose," which had hitherto been employed to convey the same meaning.

Around Cornwall, in England, they would take the word "fade" in the sense of "depart" as not at all out of the ordinary. To "fade" means to grow pale or weak, but in Cornwall it also means "to go." Just how it happens to have that meaning the philologists do not agree. It is spelled both "fade" and "fade," and the plausible suggestion has been offered that the word comes from the Latin, the expression "fade mecum," meaning "go with me," having been in common use in the days when a prayer book or a tallman that was supposed to go along with the individual to bring good luck was thus inscribed. The fade dance, in which the dancers go from house to house, has been popular in that corner of England for six centuries.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

MISS MARGARET EDWARDS. (With Full Details)

"PERFECT GIRL" DECRIES CORSETS AND GYMNASIUMS.

Boston, Mass., June 6.—Margaret Edwards, the "Perfect Girl" of California has come to Boston. She has a message that will interest each and every girl who wants to be thin and fashionable, or at least, not stout.

Eminent scientists all over the country declare her the most perfectly formed and healthiest girl in the world. She was put through the test with 20,000 girls, representing all nations, and won the much coveted distinction.

Margaret and her gracious mother, who is with her, are not fastidious. Simplicity is their motto. In fact, Margaret might well be called "Little Miss Simplicity." She does not force you to a diet. She does not prohibit the stout girl from drinking milk. On the other hand, Margaret says:

"The stout girl may drink all the milk she wants. I drink a large quantity every day. But she must exercise faithfully and vigorously. She may eat the things she likes too, if she will only exercise in the morning and before retiring."

Then, too, listen to what this remarkable young miss—for she's only 16—says about athletics and gymnasiums:

"The game of basketball is a crime. It creates havoc with the physique. The gymnasium should be abolished. I never had an Indian club or a pair of dumb bells in my hands. Take your own exercise in your room before a mirror. That is all the gymnasium you need."

Margaret has never worn a corset, and states that she never will. Her remarkable figure offsets all claims that the corset is indispensable to the good looking figure.

A Nigerian's Aspiration.

An advertisement by an English firm recently appeared in a London daily newspaper for an experienced youth for their office in London. Among the replies received was one from northern Nigeria as follows:

"Having seen your name and address I am more than pleased to ask for a berth in your office. And also as you state in the paper that you want a good and experienced youth in your office which I beg to office myself in the post. I learn typewriter, but have not yet completed it. Shorthand I have learned, and I can write, but not so fast as a man who can write 100 words in a minute.

"If you want me kindly let me know, and if not let me know same."

"I am a Gold Coast youth of sixteen years."

"I hope you will not fail to do the same."

"Expectantly awaiting to hear from you as timous as ever."—London Spectator.

Desperate Diet.

It is amazing what people will eat at a pinch.

A recent arctic explorer seriously advised the wearing of skin clothing in preference to woolen simply and solely because, if the worst came to the worst, one's outfit could be stewed for a meal or at any rate given to the dogs!

The bishop of Yukon thinks nothing of eating his boots. He had probably declared he was ready for that operation many a time when he was a boy, but he has actually done it since he came to man's estate—in his case the great gold field of arctic Alaska.—London Answers.

More Appetizers.

Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, the Labrador physician, tells the following amusing story about one of his trips on a komatik, or dog sled.

He and his guide were on the way to a distant village, where a small boy was reported to have "found himself in his stomach," which means in the semi-Chaucerian dialect of Labrador that he was afflicted with indigestion.

The guide "clef the split" (split the wood) and prepared the luncheon of steaming tea and pork beans, one of the few natural foods that really does not freeze.

"Where," inquired Dr. Grenfell, "are the compressed food tablets? I gave you a month's supply this morning."

"Oh," answered the guide impassively, "I ate them after breakfast," and he hungrily bit into his pork bean.

Events That Pass Us By.

We can be but partially acquainted even with the events which actually influence our course through life and our final destiny. There are innumerable other events, if such they may be called, which come close upon us, yet pass away without actual results or even betraying their near approach by the reflection of any light or shadow across our minds. Could we know all the vicissitudes of our fortune life would be too full of hope and fear, exultation or disappointment to afford us a single hour of true serenity.—Hawthorne.

Favorite Son. "Are you a favorite son of your state?"

"No," explained Senator Sorghum. "I don't believe I care to be. A favorite son is too liable to be regarded by outside observers as a pampered pet who might be all the better with an occasional licking."—Washington Star.

The Last Word. Hubby (with irritation)—Why is it that you women insist upon having the last word? Wife (calmly)—We don't. The only reason we get it is because we always have a dozen arguments left when you stupid men are all run out.

Her Good Point. "Your laundress seems to be a timid sort of woman."

"Yes, but she always manages to put up a stiff front."—Baltimore American.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Sleeplessness. The inability to sleep is frequently caused by nervousness—the strain of the day's work.

Fatigue, too, keeps one awake. For many there are who are too tired to sleep. If the food eaten during the day has been insufficient one should eat sandwiches of bread and cheese or ham and drink a glass of hot milk at bedtime. Sometimes an apple or two or some figs or raisins will be enough to satisfy the craving (unrecognized) for food. Drinking water is needful, too, to promote the absorption of the food.

Two or three glasses of either hot or cold water at bedtime will be of service.

Restlessness or nervousness is always relieved by a hot bath before going to bed. This, too, takes away the tired feeling.

The night clothing should be loose at the neck and wrists and roomy, and none of the daytime garments should be worn to bed.

Where, inquired Dr. Grenfell, "are the compressed food tablets? I gave you a month's supply this morning."

"Oh," answered the guide impassively, "I ate them after breakfast," and he hungrily bit into his pork bean.

FINDING ASSETS OF RUDDY-SAUNDERS

Ex-Sheriff Hornbeck of Dutchess county and Charles Van Etten of this city have been touring three counties the past week locating assets of the Ruddy and Saunders Construction Company, the Troy highway building concern which was recently petitioned into bankruptcy by creditors with $39,000 claims of which $6,000 were those of Kingston business houses. According to the appraisers considerable property was found in the way of wagons, crushed stone, a carload of pipe and some machinery distributed along the road near some of the jobs the company was engaged upon.

At Holmes, Dutchess county, a lot of machinery and supplies was sold to a Beacon man for $500. This lot is claimed to have included a steam shovel worth at least $3,000 and, according to attorneys in the case, this lot would inventory nearer $5,000 than $800 the price paid. It is reported that an attempt to set aside this sale will be made in bankruptcy court.

Attorney D. G. Atkins, who with former Highway Commissioner John Carlisle represents the trustee, accompanied the appraisers on their tour.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke.)

New York, June 6.—Is Christy Mathewson going to flash the same sensational comeback that Cy Young did in 1907 just when everyone had figured him as completely through?

In many ways, the record of Mathewson and Young parallel each other. Just recently it seemed that they would diverge—that Mathewson had reached the end—but the great showing by "Big Six" during the past month, has led many to hope that he too will do as Young did.

Young broke into the majors back in 1890. For ten years he starred with the Cleveland club, then was transferred to the St. Louis Cardinals, and, in 1901, was sold to the Red Sox. It was the brilliant pitching of Cy during 1903 and 1904 that enabled the Bostonians to win two pennants and one world's championship.

But in 1905 something went amiss with Young's arm. The old whip wouldn't crack as it had in the other years; the old zip was gone from ball. The opposition clubbers found little or no difficulty in swatting the heavens of the veteran.

Just about then the "wise ones" began to chant the swan song. They pointed out that Young was through.

"He's been pitching for 16 years and no matter how good a man is he can't go on forever," they declared. "Furthermore, Cy is 33 years old—an age far beyond the athletic prime."

When Young turned in his 1905 average it was found that he had won only 18 of the 37 combats in which he had figured. Young's showing for 1906 was even worse. He won only 13 out of 34 games and didn't seem able to go the route. He finished the season with an average of .382—the worst he ever amassed. That convinced the bulk of the fans that Cy was through.

But the Red Sox manager wouldn't "can" Cy. He figured that his great work for the Red Sox in the other years merited his keeping him for another season, even if Cy did nothing but coaching duty. And so Cy then 39 years old, was kept on the Red Sox roster, while the fans clamored for his banishment to the Old Men's Home. That probably peeved him a bit, because, after having his arm tinkered here and there, he begged for a chance to display his wares in 1907. He did—and won 22 out of 37 combats, for a pitching average of .595. The next season—1908—Cy won 21 out of 32 games for an average of .656, which is quite a healthy showing for a 41 year old hurler. On June 30, 1908, he shut out the Yankees without a hit, only one man reaching first.

In 1909 he went back to the Cleveland club and won 19 out of 34 games. The following year—1910—he figured in 17 games and won 10. In 1911 he took unto himself a job with the Boston Braves and won four out of nine starts. He decided then that he was getting a bit too old to pitch, being 44 years old at the time, and he retired from the game.

Reviewing Young's record from the end of the 1906 campaign when he was considered "all through," until the time he actually quit, we find that he won 73 and lost only 56 games, giving him a grand average of .567 for the five years from 1907 to 1911 inclusive.

Now let us consider the case of Mathewson:

Matty joined the Giants in 1900. Over a sweep of 15 seasons—from 1900 until the end of the 1914 season, the big blond hurler was the king pin of the Giant pitching staff. But late in the 1914 season he contracted "arthritis," as did Young at the end of his 16th year.

In 1915 Matty, then in his 16th year as a major performer, was of no real value to his club. His arm seemed gone. He won only 8 out of his 22 starts and some of those victories were of the fluke order. Before the season ended, the "wise ones" declared that Matty was about through.

"He's been pitching for 16 years and no matter how good a man is he can't go on forever," they said, repeating what their associate members said about Cy Young back in 1906. The folks pointed out, also, that Matty was quite an elderly person as baseballers go, then approaching his 36th birthday.

But Matty in 1916 seems to be duplicating what Young did in 1907. He has started off this season at a great rate. His arm trouble seems gone. In his first tryout of the year, "Big Six" didn't look overly good, but it is because he merely was giving the "twine a workout."

But since then he has been pitching real baseball. He hasn't the old speed of bygone years, but he is using a splitter and his brain, and by mixing up his delivery, he is breezing along in a way that makes it seem as if he still has a number of years of major league usefulness in his system.

(By Frank G. Menke.)
The Giants' galling gun, trained across the bridge, was spiked by the Reds.
It was another extra inning game the Giants lost.

Of the seven games in the major leagues, six of them were won by one run, and four of the games were decided by a 3 to 2 score.

The Yankees climbed up another notch in the chase after the Indians, when they defeated the White Sox, while the Indians were being goosed by the Red Sox.

The weather man took a hand in the fight for the cellar position in the American League and won out.

The Cardinals tried hard to stop the National League champs, but the Phillies came through with the punch in the eleventh.

Even Walter Johnson could not stop the Nationals' losing streak. The Tigers got to the mighty one.

The Dodgers added a full game between their lead and the Giants when they defeated the Pirates.

The Braves' war dance was stopped by the Cubs.

Part of the U. & D. section strikers of this place resumed work again Monday morning. Others took up more paying jobs.

Losses Wedding Gown in Blaze.

Sunday evening shortly after 10 o'clock an alarm of fire was sounded which the firemen promptly responded to. The blaze was in one of the tenement houses on Hill street, Saugerties, owned by Philip Van Etten, the ice man. The fire was in one of the children's bed rooms and was caused by one of the window curtains coming into contact with the flame of a kerosene oil lamp. The damage to the furniture and other household articles amounted to over $200, and was caused more by water than fire. There was no insurance on either the building or its contents. The building was occupied by Lester June, one of Mr. Van Etten's employees. Mr. June's daughter, who is to be married in the near future, suffered the loss of her entire wedding trousseau in the fire.

ANOTHER STABBING AFFRAY TODAY

One Man Hit Other With Beer Glass, and Was Stabbed With Knife—Wounded Man Walked to Hospital Leaving Bloody Trail on Sidewalk—Stabber Arrested.

With the broken blade of a pen knife in his side a man said to be Herbert Harbeck walked down Broadway from Field Court to the Kingston City Hospital this morning, leaving a bloody trail behind him on the sidewalk, while Samuel R. Christian, of Johnstown, Pa., who did the stabbing, was taken to the city hall by Policeman Edwin Shader. At the hospital it was found that Harbeck had been stabbed in the thigh and in the arm, but his injuries are not considered serious. The stabber will be held until Wednesday morning, when he will be arraigned before Recorder Lang.

The wounded man is about 22 years of age, and is said to reside on Wibur avenue. The man who used the knife is about 26 years old, and is a much smaller man, physically, than the one he stabbed.

According to Christian's story when he was taken to police headquarters by the officer he said he had come to Kingston to visit his sister, who lived at Kingston Point. Monday evening he met some friends and they had a number of drinks together and made a night of it. Harbeck was also a member of the party. This morning they went into the saloon on Broadway near Field Court, known as the Big Chief's, and which is now run by an Italian. There they had several more drinks.

After a while, according to Christian, Harbeck began to pick on him and finally hit him with a beer glass. Christian exhibited a cut over one eye where he said the glass hit him. After throwing the glass at him Harbeck began to punch him and Christian said that as Harbeck was so much bigger than him that he finally drew his pen knife and stabbed Harbeck. He claimed he only stabbed Harbeck once, but Harbeck was stabbed twice, once in the side and once in the upper arm.

Policeman Shader, who was on that beat, heard of the affray and placed Christian under arrest, while Harbeck started to walk in search of a doctor. He was met by Policeman Healy, who had been sent to the scene, and the officer accompanied him to the hospital. Harbeck's wounds bleed profusely and left a trail of blood all the way down the street.

Christian is a small man physically and is an Italian.
He was later taken over to the hospital by Shader, where he was identified by the wounded man as the man who stabbed him.

It was thought best by the police not to arraign Christian today, but to wait until Wednesday in order to see how Harbeck would turn out.

Christian was later taken to the county jail to spend the night.

Iron in Water.

Half a part to the million of iron in water is detectable by taste, and more than four or five parts make water unpalatable. In some mineral springs iron is the constituent which imparts a medicinal value to the water, but ordinarily it is undesirable. More than 2.5 parts a million in water used for laundering makes a stain on the clothes. Iron must be removed from water from which ice is made, or a cloudy, discolored product will result. An iron content of more than two or three parts a million in water used in the manufacture of paper will stain the paper.

SIMON BROS.' STOCKS

It will be recalled that we purchased the high-grade stocks of Simon Brothers a few weeks ago, and although we attempted to sell all the goods by special sale, we disposed of about half of them because we were compelled to vacate the Simon Brothers store by the new lessee after a few days of unprecedentedly brisk selling.

It is not necessary for us to dwell at length upon the high standard-quality of the merchandise carried by the Simon Brothers. Every thrifty woman in Kingston is familiar with it. The goods are in perfect condition, and some of them are offered at lower prices than the wholesale quotations of the manufacturers today.

What Have We Here?

It is a chimney.
But haven't I seen it before?
Yes, it is part of the New Perfection Oil Cook Stove, which is now serving over 2,000,000 homes. It is an important part, too, for this long blue chimney makes the
New Perfection odorless, smokeless, and trouble-proof.
Like a gas stove?
Better, in some ways. It's less expensive—burns only about six cents worth of kerosene a day. And it's portable—you can do your cooking wherever it is most convenient.

An unusually smart bathing suit is shown in brown taffeta and

The snug waistline, too, is a detail worthy of note. Like most of the smart and new bathing suits, this is shown with the taffeta bloomers finishing with a snug cuff at the knee.

SANITARY OFFICERS IN CONVENTION

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
Saratoga Springs, June 6.—With upwards of one thousand health officers from all parts of New York state in attendance, the Sixteenth Annual Conference of Sanitary Officers of the state opened here today. Dr. Herman M. Biggs, state commissioner of health, opened the session in the Casino Auditorium this morning, after which the health officer took up the program of instruction which has been mapped out for them over the three days of convention.

Dr. George W. Goler, who is health officer of the city of Rochester and known as something of a radical in public health work, told the health officers this morning that time-honored methods of fumigation to prevent the spread of communicable diseases were well high useless in accomplishing that result.
Dr. Goler declared that unless cases of communicable diseases had what he termed "Bedside Disinfection," the disease would certainly spread beyond the premises.

Dr. Goler's ideas are ones which are coming to be more generally accepted by public health workers throughout the country. In former years it was considered enough if the rooms occupied by patients of communicable diseases were fumigated. In recent years, however, the emphasis has been placed upon disinfection of the discharges from the patient, as these discharges are considered to be the only means by which the disease can be passed on to other persons.

Dr. Matthias Nicoll, Jr., of the state department staff, urged the health officers to acquire facility in diagnosing cases of communicable diseases at the earliest possible moment. He pointed out that in the early days of their attack, there is a similarity between some communicable diseases and other diseases comparatively harmless, and that unless a physician is able to differentiate between them, the chances of stopping an epidemic are greatly lessened.

The fact that quarantines of communicable diseases must be rigorously enforced were dwelt upon by Dr. Paul B. Brooks of Norwich.
Dr. Brooks was recently successful in stopping what threatened to be a wide epidemic of smallpox in Chenango county and from this and other experiences drew lessons of value to the health officers.

This afternoon Dr. A. B. Wadsworth, director of the Division of Laboratories and Research of the State Department of Health, will discuss laboratory diagnoses, and Dr. William H. Park, who is director of the New York city laboratories, will tell the health officers of the results of his research work to find an agent which will effectively immunize against diphtheria.
Group conferences of the health officers will follow. Tonight the health officers will have a smoker, at which informal talks on the several problems which arise in the course of their work will be given.

SCORING IS BLAMED

Pittsburgh Writers Criticize St.
Louis Official.

Think Pitcher Babe Adams Should Have Credit for No-Hit Game—Corps of League Scorers Would Solve Problem.

Official scoring in the baseball world is again causing trouble. It started right here in St. Louis when Pittsburgh writers criticized the work of the local official at the Cardinal park for not giving Babe Adams a no-hit game. One dinky hit, that many thought was an error by Schultz, was the sole black mark against the Pirate shortstop, writes Ed Wray in St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The present system is truly faulty.
Scorers are appointed by home clubs.
They are invariably working newspaper men. Sometimes, as in this city, the same man is not on duty in all games, but the job is "split," representatives of several papers taking turns at the task.

Thus several individuals may enter into the scoring in the same town.
Pittsburgh writers suggest that the league select a paper, without permitting anyone to know which one it is,
and take its box scores from that publication. It is argued that the scorers would then each give his own version, without waiting for the official on it.

But this would only confuse fans who want one ruling on plays and that an official one. And they are entitled to it.

The obvious course, if the scoring is not satisfactory, is to take it out of the scribes' hands and establish a corps of league scorers, each to be assigned to certain series, just as are the league umpires.

There is absolutely no reason why this should not be done now, even allowing for the expense.

WHAT THEY COST

cans, bought by Cleveland; price

SCOOPS CAREY "CLEANED UP"

Responds to Urgent Rooting of His Mother-in-Law by Banging Out
Three-Base Hit.

Scoops Carey's four hits at St. Louis in one game of the opening series is a reminder of an incident involving his father-in-law and mother-in-law. Mr.
and Mrs. Behrens. They live in St.
Louis, and Scoops spends the winter there. Carey came up with the bases full in the ninth and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Behrens, cried in kind tones:

"Ach, Scoops, hit it and clean up."
"Is Scoops your son?" asked a man alongside.
"No, sir," replied Mrs. Behrens. "He is my son-in-law."
"Then we'll all root for him," exclaimed the man.
Scoops tripled and won the game while all the St. Louis crowd yelled.

Shameful Ignorance.

vorce to a six-foot man on the ground that his five-foot wife was too small to be cruel. A lot he knows about women.—Detroit Free Press.

The Chief of Police Says:

10 Cents

I am a Chief of Police.
I used to smoke big, black cigars.
One day my doctor told me I had to cut out the Perfectos.
He recommended "Helmar" Turkish cigarettes.
Wise old doctor!
I get from a mild "Helmar" more real satisfaction than I ever got out of a big, black cigar.

The mildest tobacco for cigarettes is Turkish.

The best tobacco for cigarettes is Turkish.

Don't pay ten cents for anybody's cigarette until you have tried "Helmar," a fascinating, elevating, gentleman's smoke.

U. S. AMAZES OWN CITIZENS

By Telegram to The Freeman.
London, June 6.—Writing to a London newspaper, Sydney Brooks declares that American citizens are amazed and puzzled by the facts about their own country which the great war has revealed.

He says:
"That America should puzzle an outsider like myself is nothing. But that Americans themselves should be bewildered by their own country, should confess their inability to explain it, should be at a loss to diagnose its state of mind or to say whether, if anywhere, it is tending—this is really curious and really important."

"Once the easiest country in the world to understand, America has become one of the most difficult. Even the shrewdest native judges admit themselves baffled. The war has revealed to them a new America, of which they hardly profess to know anything. Those of them who are of British stock not only feel themselves strangers in their own land, but are aware that their position as the governing race is being sharply challenged. It is not in England or on the North Sea alone that the Anglo-Saxons are having to fight to hold their own."

"It would be difficult to exaggerate the quite tragic despair with which thousands, and I dare say tens of thousands, of Americans exhibit their doubt and their confusion and their distress. Men whose names are known the world over and who have held some of the highest offices in the republic have confessed to me that they are wholly at sea, that America seems to them a chaos in which all the familiar lights and landmarks have been submerged, and that there is little or nothing left which they dare take for granted."

"What troubles them more than anything else is to find themselves surprised by the war into the suspicion that the United States is not a nation. 'This war,' they say, 'has found us out. We trusted to our school system to assimilate all these aliens in our midst. We see now that it has failed, that racialism is rampant among us, and that there are men calling themselves Americans who are ready to sacrifice everything that is most distinctly European in the interests of the European country from which they came.'"

"But it is not only they go on, 'this ugly specter of internal division that frightens us. We have been forced into the belief that, apart altogether from the German-Americans and the other hyphenated hybrids, this country is too vast and its population at present too scattered and its component parts too heterogeneous to allow of any genuine national compactness either of thought or action.'"

"Our Federal system, too, is having its revenge upon us. Our people have a strong local patriotism. It centres in the town or village in which they live. Sometimes it embraces the state. Very rarely does it embrace the country as a whole. We have next to no national consciousness, for the average American, America is the world and his own community the most important part in it."

"There is a good deal of truth in these lamentations. The war front page of the majority of the newspapers in the middle west. What happens in Jonesville, Ohio, interests the citizen of Jonesville very much more than what is happening in Europe. Talk to him of democracy being imperilled or of the immediate menace to the United States that would follow on a German triumph, and he either does not understand or simply laughs. He has never seen the sea; it has never occurred to him, and he does not, in fact, believe that America could even be invaded, much less conquered; and outside the Monroe doctrine, which no two Americans can be got to interpret in the same way, he has no conception of anything that could be called a foreign policy, and no desire for one."

"What is Europe to him? The American continent is good enough and big enough for him, and his children and his children's children. In his busy, self-complacent isolation he thinks of his country as something apart from the rest of the universe, a favored land in which peace is always to flourish, prosperity to increase automatically, and where millions are to enjoy the well-being and the social and industrial and educational opportunities that in less happy countries have been reserved for the few."

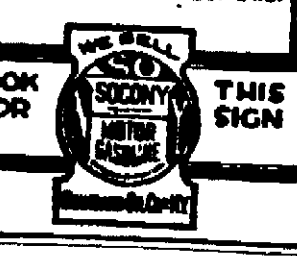

"He looks down at us in our European shambles and just pities us as victims of a madness that he is very determined shall not invade his own land or interfere with his own absorbing affairs. An absolute individualist, he has little sense of the state, and takes a quite cool and prudent view of what 'national honor' and 'national dignity' require of his country. His strongest conviction on the submarine issue, for instance, is that American citizens ought to be forbidden to travel in any ships belonging to any of the belligerent powers, and that those who defy the prohibition should do so at their own risk and without in any way involving the government."

"For the same reasons he is dead against intervention in Mexico. Americans who go down into a notoriously turbulent country seeking their fortunes have no right, he thinks, to expect protection of their government. When they are killed, and their property destroyed, his instinctive comment is that they were looking for trouble and found it, and that any war it is no concern of his. He resents the manifest efforts that have been put upon his country by the German government and by German agents and sympathizers all around him, but his resentment quickly evaporates in the excitement of his next business deal."

MEAT HIGHER AND TO GO STILL HIGHER

Meat is going even higher in the opinion of local butchers, some of whom claim that increasing exports of beef to Europe are the cause of the jump in price. On Monday the wholesale price went up one-half cent a pound for beef, making it 15 1/2 a hundred-weight. This is the highest wholesale figure meat has reached in forty years, according to one Roundout butcher. To get a reasonable profit on choice cuts of steak at retail, this means porterhouse at from 45 to 50 cents a pound, according to this man.

Lamb is 23 cents a pound at wholesale which means twice that figure for chops at retail. The scarcity of lamb is said to be largely due to the Canadian supply going abroad instead of coming across the border to the American markets as formerly. The butcher quoted above said that much goat's flesh is being sold in New York state markets, probably as lamb, a number of goats' carcasses, labelled under the law as "kid goats" being distributed regularly by some packing establishments in the Hudson Valley. Goats' meat is a delicacy and compares favorably with lamb, it is said, but there is not a great demand for it as such. Pork is also high. The demand for meat locally is increasing as the demand of mountain resort trade is just beginning to make itself felt.

An Invitation To Tea.

The ladies of the Circle, No. 5, of the Roundout Presbyterian Church, are inviting you to attend a strawberry short-cake supper in the lecture room of the church on Wednesday evening of next week, June 14. This supper will be in charge of Mrs. John Huhne and Miss Georgia Deudney, and when, in a day or two you hear all of the good things to eat, which they will offer you, you will promptly accept the invitation. The supper, whose full menu will appear in a day or two, will be served from 5:30 to 7:30. Please remember that you have a date for June 14, to take tea with the ladies at the chapel of the Roundout Presbyterian Church.

Hand Caught in Machinery.

Fred Moon, employed on a heading machine at the Greenhill avenue plant of the Herbert Brush Company, suffered a badly injured hand this morning when that member was drawn into the knives of the machine at which he was working. Another employe shut off the power quickly but not before the bone of Moon's right thumb was splintered and the first and second fingers of the hand badly cut. Dr. Frederick Snyder dressed Moon's injuries which are such as to incapacitate him for several weeks.

Sewers Were Clogged.

During the heavy rainfall of Monday afternoon sewers became clogged in various parts of the city and a force of city employes was kept busy cleaning them out. One manhole at Fair and St. James streets was overflowing while dirt choked the sewer at Clinton avenue and Franklin street. The rush of water for a short period of time was so heavy in some sections that surface water sewers were unable to carry it off for some time afterward.

M. E. MISSIONARY SOCIETIES MEET

Annual Convention of the Kingston District Held in the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church—Interesting Program Prepared.

More than three score women were in attendance this morning at the opening sessions of the annual convention of the Women's Board of Foreign and Domestic Missions of the Kingston District of the M. E. Church. The meetings will extend over two days and at tonight's devotional service Bishop J. E. Robinson of India will speak on that country and the work being carried on there by Methodist missionaries.

Organization of the convention was the principal business this morning following the opening devotional service which was led by Mrs. E. S. Potter of Port Ewen. Mrs. W. D. Porttenger of the missionary society of the Clinton Avenue Church gave a most cordial address of welcome to the delegates and visitors and paid a tribute to the work done by the former president, Mrs. J. M. Cornish. Mrs. A. S. Carroll of Hobart made a brief response in which she referred to the inspiration given the convention by the hospitality of the Kingston church people.

Mrs. Emily Hale, the district secretary then followed with the minutes of the sessions at Hobart on June 3, 1915 and those were approved. Mrs. Myron Teller followed with a report as treasurer for the district, showing a balance on hand after the year's activities.

Mrs. W. G. Siedler, Secretary of Literature, reported on the circulation of missionary pamphlets in the district.

The Rev. Dr. P. N. Chase led the noon-tide prayer after which the delegates adjourned to the church parlors where a delicious luncheon was served.

Committees were named at the morning session as follows:

Courtesies—Mrs. A. S. Carroll, Mrs. Wilkins.

Nominations—Mrs. E. A. D. Potter, Mrs. J. G. Finger and Mrs. Edw. Anglin.

A praise service opened the afternoon program, this being followed by the Glorification from the Branch Annual in which Mrs. R. E. Bell, wife of the district superintendent, gave a most interesting summary of the work of the recent gathering at Rome, N. Y.

Committee reports followed with addresses on Jubilee Work by Mrs. R. E. Bell and a solo by Miss Magdalena Hyde. Miss Mary Brown and Miss Ruth Bell also contributed to the program with an entertaining dialogue.

The chief speech of the afternoon proved highly interesting, this being given by Mrs. Elmer E. Count, of the Kingston District of the M. E. Church. In his address Mrs. Count appeared in native costume and her interesting word pictures of the national life and customs of the people of this country which is now planned in war were listened to with greatest attention by her audience.

The pastor, the Rev. G. M. Cranston, will preside at the devotional service this evening.

Delegates and others in attendance registered up to noon were as follows:

Catskill—Mrs. John Salisbury, Mrs. N. L. King, Mrs. B. Wolf, Mrs. W. H. Thorne, Miss H. E. Winans, Mrs. C. A. Weed, Miss Antoinette B. Wood.

Port Ewen—Mrs. O. A. Smith, Mrs. E. A. D. Potter, Mrs. E. A. Robinson, Mrs. George Shullis, Mrs. Mary Lynn, Mrs. G. P. Griffin.

CHICKENS DUCKS and TURKEYS

FEEDING THE YOUNG TURKEY

Breeder Should Remember, First of All, Never to Overfeed and Never Give Anything Spoiled.

In feeding small turkeys, remember never to overfeed, and never to feed anything the least spoiled. Feed often but very little at a time. Provide grit and charcoal. Feed plenty of sour milk in addition to fresh drinking water. Mix a little wheat bran and middlings with the cornmeal, moisten this a very little with sour milk and feed sparingly in low rim pie tins. In addition feed very sparingly of a little grain mixture as follows: Equal parts of lime, cracked, untaired, thoroughly dried corn and wheat. Pinhead oatmeal and a little millet are also very good.

Green food in the form of finely sliced onion tops are very good, but must indeed be fed very sparingly.

Keep the turkeys cool, and above all, free from lice and in clean surroundings. Do not allow them to stroll through long grass early in the morning, thus becoming exhausted and wet.

FEEDING MILK TO CHICKENS

Has Most Favorable Influence on Growth and Lessening of Mortality Average Among Flocks.

The feeding of milk to young chicks has a most favorable influence on the growth, and on lessening the mortality average.

Sweet and sour milk are of equal value in chick feeding. The degree of sourness does not affect the nutritive value.

Chicks fed milk freely should have abundant exercise. This applies particularly to early hatched or brooder chicks.

In no way is milk injurious, but whether you feed sweet or sour milk, the same should be fed continually until the end of the milk feeding period. Whichever is most convenient, adhere to consistently.

SPROUTED OATS FOR WINTER

Excellent Green Food for Chickens During Cold Weather—How the Trick is Performed.

Sprouted oats have proved an excellent feed for chickens during winter months. The oats may be sprouted in a regular sprouter. In trays by the kitchen stove, in the cellar, on dirt or on burlap. The trick is to soak the oats with water, spread them out in the light and keep them warm and moist until the blades are from three to six inches long.

A successful feeder soaks the oats for 24 hours, spreads them in a shallow box and places it in the cellar. Frequently an inch or more of sand is placed in the bottom of the box upon which the oats are spread.

Watch Fowls Closely.

Watch your flocks closely. It often happens that when mated up, the male is not popular—at least not generally. It is a common thing to notice some females that persistently and successfully avoid the male placed with them, and a change to another pen and male produce a marked difference. If there are such cases in your yards, try the changing method.

Don't Doctor Sick Fowls.

As a general rule it does not pay to doctor sick fowls and it is much better practice to prevent disease than to cure it.

Easy Flock to Manage.

On the average farm a flock of 100 to 150 hens is more easily managed than one of a thousand.

Pigeon Terms.

At a day old pigeons are known as "peepers"; at ten days old, "squeakers," and at three weeks old, "squealers."

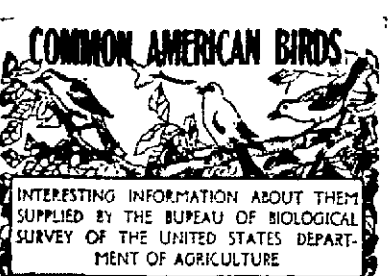

Small Flocks Pay Best.

Fowls are said to give the greatest profits when run in small flocks of 50 or not more than 100.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT BIRDS?

Probably Less Than You Would Like to, so The Freeman Gives You a Free Course in Ornithology.

Many persons are interested in our native wild birds but are unable to identify the various kinds. Books about birds are costly, so with a view to promoting nature study and an intelligent interest in birds, The Freeman begins today the publication of a series of illustrated articles descriptive of the more common kinds of wild birds. They are worth preserving in a scrap book and as there will be some fifty or more of them in the series, such a scrap book will be a pretty complete work when the articles are all assembled in it.

INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT THEM SUPPLIED BY THE BUREAU OF BIOLOGICAL SURVEY OF THE UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

MOCKING BIRD

(Mimus polyglottos)

Length, ten inches. Most easily distinguished from the similarly colored Loggerhead shrike by the absence of a conspicuous black stripe through the eye.

Range: Resident from southern Mexico north to California, Wyoming, Iowa, Ohio and Maryland; casual farther north.

Habits and economic status: Because of its incomparable medleys and imitative powers, the mockingbird is the most renowned singer of the western hemisphere. Even in confinement it is a masterly performer, and formerly thousands were trapped and sold for cage birds, but this reprehensible practice has been largely stopped by protective laws. It is not surprising, therefore, that the mockingbird should receive protection principally because of its ability as a songster and its preference for the vicinity of dwellings. Its place in the affections of the South is similar to that occupied by the robin in the North. It is well that this is true, for the bird appears not to earn protection from a strictly economic standpoint. About half of its diet consists of fruit, and many cultivated varieties are attacked, such as oranges, grapes, figs, strawberries, blackberries, and raspberries. Somewhat less than a fourth of the food is animal matter, and grasshoppers are the largest single element. The bird is fond of cotton worms, and is known to feed also on the chinch bug, rice weevil, and bollworm. It is unfortunate that it does not feed on injurious insects to an extent sufficient to offset its depredations on fruit.

Weighing Instead of Counting.

No longer is it regarded as good management to count uniform pieces one by one in manufacturing plants. Scales especially constructed for the purpose are employed for counting material of like units. Not only is the weighing machine more accurate because it substitutes simple manual operation and the highest degree of mechanical precision for the complicated mental figuring and inaccuracies of other systems, but it counts from 100 to 1,000 per cent faster than the time worn methods.

Sure Way.

"Senator, I wish you'd recommend this young man for office."

"But I know of no office I could get him."

"That's all right. I don't really want him to get any office. But he wants to marry my daughter, and if he has done anything shady in the past I'd like to have the facts brought out."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

WORK OF THE BEAVERS.

Wonderful Skill and Activity of These Clever Dam Builders.

There are probably few examples of animal industry and constructive ability more widely known than those of the beaver—every one carries from his school days a general notion that beavers build dams and other things—and though there may be a considerable margin between popular belief and the facts of fact, enough remains to attach a high degree of interest to the beaver.

With their very powerful teeth they can cut through a branch three inches thick in as many minutes. The pieces cut off are held by the teeth and forepaws and carried or dragged to the spot where they are to be used and fitted into place. The fitting is by no means carelessly carried out, and the beaver seems to have some fairly definite idea of the size and length of the piece he needs.

The beaver makes his home primarily by burrowing in the bank of a stream, and the purpose of the dam is to maintain the water at a fixed height, so that the entrance to the burrow is always covered as a protection from enemies.

Though, however, the beaver has intelligence enough for the building of his dam, he has not sufficient to know when to stop building, and so he increases the structure and raises the level of his pool until burrowing upward no longer serves to keep his house above water, and so he raises the height of his walls and roof by building with branches and mud the well known dome shaped "lodges."

Charles Lamb in British Museum.

The British museum reading room was a favorite resort of Charles Lamb in the days following his retirement from the East India House. "I am going through a course of reading at the museum," he writes to Bernard Barton in 1826. "The Garrick plays, out of part of which I formed my 'Specimens.' I have 2,000 to go through and in a few weeks have dispatched the rhye of 'em. It is a sort of office to me: hours 10 to 4, the same. It does me good. Man must have regular occupation that has been used to it." Mary Lamb expressed her delight in her brother's fondness for the museum "as occupying his time and keeping him from his walks, which she seemed to think over-long."

His Modest Position.

"I don't envy the men who manage the big hotels in the cities," gloomily said the landlord of the Petunia tavern. "It is as much as I can do to make a bluff at keeping the peace between the little bunch of help I've got. Yesterday one of the two dining room girls said that the other one's best feller had two left feet, and in less than no time those two young ladies had flew to it with ketchup bottles and so forth. Just imagine the spritely function there would be in a hotel with 700 employees, all battling with ketchup bottles!"—Judge.

Possibly.

Mr. Briggs—Here's an article, dear, a very interesting article, in which a prominent doctor says that a certain cure for nervousness in women is silence, complete silence. Mrs. Briggs (promptly)—I'll bet anything some fool of a man doctor wrote that!—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FINDING ASSETS OF RUDDY SAUNDERS

Ex-Sheriff Hornbeck of Dutchess county and Charles Van Etten of this city have been touring three counties the past week locating assets of the Ruddy and Saunders Construction Company, the Troy highway building concern which was recently petitioned into bankruptcy by creditors with $39,000 claims of which $6,000 were those of Kingston business houses. According to the appraisers considerable property was found in the way of wagons, crushed stone, a carload of pipe and some machinery distributed along the road near some of the jobs the company was engaged upon.

At Holmes, Dutchess county, a lot of machinery and supplies was sold to a Beacon man for $800. This lot is claimed to have included a steam shovel worth at least $3,000 and, according to attorneys in the case, this lot would inventory nearer $5,000 than $800 the price paid. It is reported that an attempt to set aside this sale will be made in bankruptcy court.

Attorney D. G. Atkins, who with former Highway Commissioner John Carlisle represents the trustee, accompanied the appraisers on their tour.

REACHED BY "BIG" MONTH, HAS LOST TOO MUCH TO DO AS YOUNG

Young broke into the big league in 1890. For ten years he was with the Cleveland club, then was transferred to the St. Louis Cardinals, and, in 1901, was sold to the Red Sox. It was the brilliant pitching of Cy during 1903 and 1904 that enabled the Bostonians to win two pennants and one world's championship.

But in 1905 something went amiss with Young's arm. The old whip wouldn't crack as it had in the other years; the old zip was gone from ball. The opposition clubbers found little or no difficulty in swatting the heaves of the veteran.

Just about then the "wise ones" began to chant the swan song. They pointed out that Young was through.

"He's been pitching for 16 years, and no matter how good a man is he can't go on forever," they declared. "Furthermore, Cy is 33 years old—an age far beyond the athletic prime."

When Young turned in his 1905 average it was found that he had won only 18 of the 37 games in which he had figured. Young's showing for 1906 was even worse. He won only 13 out of 34 games and didn't succeed in going to the finish of the season with an average of .382—the worst he ever amassed. That convinced the bulk of the fans that Cy was through.

But the Red Sox manager wouldn't "can" Cy. He figured that his great work for the Red Sox in the other years merited his keeping him for another season, even if Cy did nothing but coaching duty.

And so Cy, then 39 years old, was kept on the Red Sox roster, while the fans clamored for his banishment to the Old Men's Home. That probably peeved him a bit, because, after having his arm tinkered here and there, he begged for a chance to display his wares in 1907. He did—and won 22 out of 37 games, for a pitching average of .595. The next season—1908—Cy won 21 out of 32 games for an average of .655, which is quite a healthy showing for a 41 year old hurler. On June 30, 1908, he shut out the Yankees without a hit, only one man reaching first.

In 1909 he went back to the Cleveland club and won 19 out of 34 games. The following year—1910—he figured in 17 games and won 10. In 1911 he took unto himself a job with the Boston Braves and won four out of nine starts. He decided then that he was getting a bit too old to pitch, being 44 years old at the time, and he retired from the game.

Reviewing Young's record from the end of the 1906 campaign when he was considered "all through," until the time he actually quit, we find that he won 73 and lost only 56 games, giving him a grand average of .567 for the five years from 1907 to 1911 inclusive.

Now let us consider the case of Mathewson:

Matty joined the Giants in 1900. Over a sweep of 15 seasons—from 1900 until the end of the 1914 season, the big blond hurler was the king pin of the Giant pitching staff. But late in the 1914 season he contracted "arthritis," as did Young at the end of his 16th year.

In 1915 Matty, then in his 16th year as a major performer, was of no real value to his club. His arm seemed gone. He won only 8 out of his 22 starts and some of those victories were of the fluke order. Before the season ended, the "wise ones" declared that Matty was about through.

"He's been pitching for 16 years and no matter how good a man is he can't go on forever," they said, repeating what their associate members said about Cy Young back in 1906. The folks pointed out also that Matty was quite an elderly person, as baseballers go, then approaching his 35th birthday.

But Matty in 1916 seems to be duplicating what Young did in 1907. He has started off this season at a great rate. His arm trouble seems gone. In his first tryout of the year, "Big Six" didn't look overly good. That is because he merely was giving the "wing a workout." But since then he has been pitching real baseball. He hasn't the old speed of bygone years, but he is using a spitter and his brain, and by mixing up his delivery, he is breezing along in a way that makes it seem as if he still has a number of years of major league usefulness in his system.

LOSING WEDDING GOWN IN BLAZE.

Sunday evening shortly after 10 o'clock an alarm of fire was sounded which the firemen promptly responded to. The blaze was in one of the tenement houses on Hill street, Saucerties, owned by Philip Van Etten, the ice man. The fire was in one of the children's bed rooms and was caused by one of the window curtains coming into contact with the flame of a kerosene oil lamp. The damage to the furniture and other household articles amounted to over $200, and was caused more by water than fire. There was no insurance on either the building or its contents. The building was occupied by Lester June, one of Mr. Van Etten's employees. Mr. June's daughter, who is to be married in the near future, suffered the loss of her entire wedding trousseau in the fire.

LOSING WEDDING GOWN IN BLAZE.

Sunday evening shortly after 10 o'clock an alarm of fire was sounded which the firemen promptly responded to. The blaze was in one of the tenement houses on Hill street, Saucerties, owned by Philip Van Etten, the ice man. The fire was in one of the children's bed rooms and was caused by one of the window curtains coming into contact with the flame of a kerosene oil lamp. The damage to the furniture and other household articles amounted to over $200, and was caused more by water than fire. There was no insurance on either the building or its contents. The building was occupied by Lester June, one of Mr. Van Etten's employees. Mr. June's daughter, who is to be married in the near future, suffered the loss of her entire wedding trousseau in the fire.
